Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Raechel Kilgore criss-crosses the state promoting the dairy industry. The Kilgores are typical of similar farm families who will be featured in our June Dairy Issue next week. Included will be family farm features, breed and association news and highlights, and other great reading for our dairy families. Turn to page B2 for more about the Kilgores, who have a long history of involvement in community and farm leadership activities.

Monsours Receive First Pa. Business/Agricultural Loan

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — Jack and Kathy Monsour, Bedford, have received the first agriculture-related business loan in Pennsylvania.

Longtime sheep farmers in the rolling-hilled Dutch Corner area, Jack and Kathy have a flock of 1,000 North Country Cheviots.

The Monsours purchased their first farm 12 years ago, complete with a turn-of-the century farmhouse. When buying the land, they agreed to allow the owner to remain in the house for 10 years.

At the end of the decade, Kathy was ready to move into action, turning the house into a vacation home known as The Silhouette. It offers a picturesque view of their sheep dotted fields, a spacious lawn, and a hot tub where one can view the stars and listen to the restful sounds of baaing sheep.

Inside, Kathy's meticulous housekeeping habits have created an elegant but very practical environment.

Helped in their agricultural ventures by their two sons, Jackson and Burt, the Monsours offer a variety of entertainment for their guests. Since the home is centrally located on the farm, guests can watch not only the sheep but the Border Collie and Great Pyrenees dogs at work.

Wolff Names New Farm Show Team

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Dennis Wolff announced Wednesday the appointment of a new management team to oversee the operations of the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

Wolff named Bill L. Wehry of Klingerstown, Schuylkill County, as deputy secretary; Edward L. Nielsen of Harrisburg, Dauphin County, as Farm Show director; and Larry R. Weaver of New Holland, Lancaster County, as chief of the Show Management Division.

"The addition of these three experienced managers to the Farm Show team will strengthen and complement an already strong Bureau of Farm Show," Wolff said. "Together, we will continue to improve the quality of shows and events hosted by this world-class facility."

As deputy secretary, Wehry will have responsibility for the Bureau of Farm Show and other bureaus within the agriculture department.

Wehry is an owner/partner of Meadow Creek Farms, Schuylkill County, where he developed a knowledge of the livestock and crops industries.

Wehry has worked toward the advancement of federal farm policy and the implementation of farm programs in Pennsylvania. He has served six years on the USDA Farm Service Agency State Committee, including four years as chairman. He is also a member of the Schuylkill/Carbon County Farm Bureau, Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, Pennsylvania Farmer's Union, the Schuylkill County Board for Farmland Preservation, and the Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council.

Conservation Efforts Prove Successful At Diversified Schertel Farm

DEANNA CUNFER
Carbon Co. Correspondent

NEW TRIPOLI (Lehigh Co.) — Members of the farming community recently visited the 100-acre Lynn Township farm of Mark, Marie, and George Schertel, where they saw firsthand several examples of how producers can benefit from the efforts and cooperation of agencies that provide programs to help protect and improve conservation measures.

Former dairy producers from Montgomery County, the Schertels purchased their property in 1955 and moved to the farm in 1960, where they raise beef cattle, hogs, corn, small grains, and hay.

The farm is situated on the rolling hills of western Lehigh County in an area where some of those rolling hills can be quite steep. The lay of the land is ideal for running a beef cow-calf operation utilizing the steeper slopes for pasture for their 70 head of crossbred cattle.

The Schertel family also has a farrow-to-finish swine operation, and although the family hopes to incorporate conservation measures in the swine operation in the future, they knew their priority was to improve and protect the stream that runs through their property and pastureland.

Initially the Schertels contacted the Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) in 1997 about the Environmental Quality Incentive Program (EQIP) but were not selected. They kept trying every year and were finally selected for the program in 2001. Once they were notified of their selection, everyone — the Schertel family and various agencies — worked together to get the project up and going.

Compared to Thursday, slaughter steers sold weak to 1.00 lower on Monday mainly due to the lower quality of the supply and the full weigh-ups. However, on Tuesday prices were firm to .50 higher on the Choice steers, with high Choice and Prime steers up to 1.00 higher. The quality of the Tuesday run was outstanding, with several consignments of very well-finished steers. The Tuesday run only included around 115 head, which also lent support. Records continue to be shattered in the county, as there were a couple of fancy steers that sold for 88,00; and an outstanding single which topped the Tuesday market at 88.50. The slaughter Holstein supply was very light and a trend was not established. The slaughter heifer supply included some long-feds that were not comparable to the Thursday run, but sold with a steady undertone. Slaughter cows sold steady to 1.00 lower with the bulk of the decrease on the fleshy cows. There were not enough slaughter bulls to test the market. The two-day run included 299 steers, 52 heifers, 387 cows, 13 bulls, with 6 head of feeder cattle.

Compared to Tuesday, slaughter steers sold 2.00-3.00 higher in very active trading. The quality of the run was very good, with a large percentage of the supply consisting of Choice and Prime cattle. The ink had not even dried in the record books early in the week when the top steer sold for 88.50, when late in the week a small group brought 89.00. What is even more impressive than the market toppers is the price the bulk of the Choice steers are bringing, from 82.00-86.00. Many factors could have gone into producing a higher Thursday market, whether it be the lighter late week run, the Mercs limit-up close the prior day, boxed beef values up 2.00-2.60 on Wednesday, the closing of the Canadian border, or a bearish western fat cattle market; whatever it is, producers are not going to question it as the market is better than it has been in years. Compared to a very light run of Holsteins early in the week, slaughter Holsteins sold 2.00-3.00 higher. Slaughter heifers sold up to 3.00 higher, although the early week run was light. Fleshy (65-80 percent lean) slaughter cows sold fully 2.00-3.00 higher in active trading. Lean slaughter cows sold firm to 1.50 higher. The supply consisted of some very fancy Breaking and Premium White cows which sold at over 60.00 at times. Slaughter bulls sold with a higher undertone on a very nice run. The supply included 435 head of steers, 411 cows, 52 heifers, 51 bulls, with 216 head of feeder cattle.

Slaughter Steers: High Choice and Prime 2-4 1190-1440 lbs 84.75-89.00. Holstein Steers: Choice and Prime 2-3 1350-1560 lbs 71.75-77.25, couple up to 78.25, few heavyweights 1610-1655 lbs 69.25-70.25. Select and low Choice 2-3 1365-1590 lbs 66.50-70.75. Select 1-2 1165-1520 lbs 61.00-65.25, few up to 68.75.

Slaughter Heifers: High Choice and Prime 3, mostly 4 1035-1400 lbs 81.50-85.00. Choice 2-3 1085-1220 lbs 78.75-82.75. High dressing Select 2 individual 1190 lbs 83.25.

Boners, 75-80, over 1200 lbs, 46.00-51.25, 41.75-45.75, up to 53.25. Lean (Hi-Yield), 80-85, over 1200 lbs, up to 47.00. Lean, 85-90, over 1000 lbs, 39.00-43.00, 36.00-40.25, up to 44.50.

Slaughter Bulls: Yield Grade 1 1195-2145 lbs 53.00-60.75, several fancy high dressers 63.50-69.75, with a few outstanding 70.75-75.00, low dressing 49.25-52.00. Calves: Compared to Tuesday, veal calves sold with a higher undertone on a fairly light test. Holstein bull calves going into special-fed veal barns sold sharply higher with the bulk of the increase on the Number One bulls. Prices for the Number Two bulls were firmer, but bidding was not as active. Holstein heifers sold with a lower undertone due to only minimal buyer interest. The PA Department of Ag graded 244 head of bulls for the graded sale, with an estimated 90 percent of the run going back on feed.

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
May 28, 2003
Report Supplied By USDA

Grain and soybean bids were slightly to moderately lower for the day.

Weakness stemmed from lack of fresh export interest and good planting progress. Light rainfall was reported in parts of the Midwest and Corn Belt areas but planters still made some headway. Winter wheat bids were under light harvest pressure. Corn saw a small overseas purchase by Taiwan but other commodities were left out. Good planting weather is forecast for much of the Corn Belt region tomorrow. Much of todays declines were technical corrections. Wheat steady to 9 cents lower.

Corn steady to 2 cents lower. Sorghum 1 cent lower. Soybeans 5 to 8 cents lower

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC — THIS WEEK WITH

JUNE 2–8, 2003

WORLD ENVIRONMENT DAY, JUNE 5

HOW NOW, BROWN COW?

June has been designated National Dairy Month since 1937 Long before then, cows were known as weather prognosticators, especially for predicting rain Old-timers expected rain when cows didn't give milk, when cattle wanted to lie down on going out to pasture, and when cows stretched their necks in milking stalls or were generally restless

For high-quality cheese, cheese makers went by this rule of thumb "If you will have a good cheese and hav'n old, you must turn'n seven times before he is cold." Successful dairy farmers knew, "Cheese and money should always sleep together one night" (As in, payment comes before the cheese leaves the larder!)

The cow knows not what her tail is worth until she has lost it.

TIP OF THE WEEK

For indoor arrangements, tulips last longest if you harvest them when their color is visible and keep them cool.

SWEET AND SOUR STRAWBERRIES

8 ounces cream cheese, softened (not whipped style)
1 cup sour cream
4 tablespoons honey
1 quart strawberries, rinsed
1/4 cup granulated sugar

Mix cream cheese, sour cream, and honey together and refrigerate for 24 hours, either in individual custard cups or in a glass serving bowl. When ready to serve, set aside six whole strawberries, mash the remaining strawberries just slightly with the sugar, then pour over the sour cream mixture Garnish each serving with a whole strawberry

Makes 6 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

Gnats galore, screen the door.

If the white chickweed blossoms are open, it will not rain for at least three hours.

OPINION

What Will Slots Do To/For Pa.?

Probably one of the most divisive issues not only in agriculture but in the general economy is how to solve the $2 billion budget deficit faced by Pennsylvania. Some of our legislators believe the state needs slots (apparently, the argument goes, Pennsylvania residents gamble out of state to the tune of about $3 billion a year) or to raise the sales tax.

Gov. Ed Rendell, according to analysts, stands to generate about $780 million in 2004 from slot machines if the licenses can get to the right people. There is talk about simply giving them away. (Some critics say: Why not sell the licenses and generate income that way?) In the end, there is going to be an onslaught of opposition from groups who traditionally don't favor these sorts of things.

Rendell had some interesting ideas when he decided "vice taxes" could pick up the deficit tab or stand in place of property taxes. Perhaps those who don't smoke or drink could care less and think those are the only things that should get taxed in the first place. At this point, however, we don't favor cutbacks to state educational institutions and don't want to see our kids in school suffer as a result of nothing being decided.

In addition, other methods are desperately needed to replace our outmoded and unfair property tax system.

Recently, we received a news release from the Pennsylvania Tourism and Lodging Association (PTLA) that supports slots at state racetracks. PTLA's 800 members announced that they support legislation to legalize slot machines at Pennsylvania's horse racing tracks.

The reason: the state needs to "enhance its competitive advantage in providing a quality tourism product and experience compared to competing destinations," noted Barry Wickes, PTLA president. PTLA believes slots will increase jobs and revenue to the state.

However, critics point out: What about the inevitable gambling debts and bankruptcy court that having slots will entail? Do tourists come to Pennsylvania and the historic counties to see this kind of thing? Does Lancaster County want to be the next Atlantic City?

In 2001, Pennsylvania was the fifth most visited state in both leisure and business, according to PTLA. Travel was up in 2002. Slots may attract more visitors. Maybe Pennsylvania may gain visitors, but we believe it will have lost what made it special and separate from the rest of the general consumer-driven, strip-mall, vice-exploited public.

To Wait For Proper Soil Conditions To Finish Corn Planting

Although Pennsylvania farmers got a good start on corn planting this spring (more than 40 percent complete by mid-May), recent rainy weather has caused planting to fall behind average. Gregory Roth, Penn State associate professor of agronomy, advises farmers not to panic, but to follow a few simple tips in approaching later plantings this year.

"Yield losses are not that great due to later planting," Roth said. "In fact, sometimes when planting has been completed quickly in recent years, we've had low yields, so farmers should wait until soil conditions are right. Weather patterns should grow more summerlike as the jet stream begins its retreat during the next few weeks."

When soils finally dry out after wet-weather planting, Roth said, furrow sidewall compaction can hamper corn growth. So farmers shouldn't panic and begin planting in inappropriate conditions.

Roth has several other tips for dealing with the wet weather as well. First, don't delay planting because of tillage or spreading fertilizer. Consider no-till planting and sidedressing of fertilizer. One should also consider using Bt hybrids. Recent research has shown corn planted later in May or in early June often encounters more second-generation corn borer damage and has a more consistent yield response to Bt than earlier planted corn.

Reconsider the use of starter fertilizer on later planted corn. Starter benefits are generally small on many manured soils and they decline as planting is delayed. Plant the seed 1.5 to 2 inches deep. Shallow corn planting is more risky later in the season when conditions in the seed zone can quickly change to hot, dry, and cloddy.

To Evaluate Direct Cutting Of Barley For Ensiling

Dairy and livestock producers suffering from the effects of two consecutive years of poor forage production are looking for alternative forage supplies to meet forage and feed needs until the 2003 corn silage crop is harvested.

Penn State Capitol Region agronomy agent Paul Craig reports one alternative that is being considered in many areas is direct cutting of barley for ensiling. In some areas last year, custom harvesters modified existing forage harvesters to speed up this process. Early users have reported highly acceptable feed production and now others are looking into this alternative.

What is direct cut barley? It is barley that is harvested with a small grain head mounted on a forage chopper and then placed in a silo or trench. Cutting height is about 6 inches and there is no wilting of the crop. Harvest is at the proper moisture level for different silo types. Farmers with trenches should shoot for 65 to 70 percent, upright silos at 63-68 percent, and sealed silos at 55-60 percent. This is usually around the soft dough stage, when milky kernels can be easily crushed in your fingertips. Moisture monitoring and determination is critical. Yields range from 3 to 4 tons/acre of dry matter.

Unlike rye which rapidly increases its level of indigestible fiber and lignin after heading, wheat, oats, and barley actually produce more energy and protein per acre after the crop is headed. In studies at Kansas and Mississippi State, barley was rated the best choice because of higher grain yields and good digestibility. In general, barley silage quality is good, with energy levels slightly lower than corn silage (TDN 64 percent vs. 69 percent for corn silage) and a protein level slightly higher (9-11 percent vs. 8 percent for corn silage). Stage of maturity, variety, fertility, and harvest management can greatly affect forage quality. Everyone recommends using forage testing to ensure its proper substitution in a ration.

Small grains mature much faster than corn silage. The proper harvest window will be very narrow, at most 3 to 6 days, depending on weather. This requires close monitoring of the crop, coordination with harvesters, and large capacity equipment. Because of hollow stems, a shorter cut, often ⅜ inch, is recommended. However, to optimize fiber in the silage, do not overchop. Good packing, rapid fill, and prevention of air exchange are especially important this time of year because of warmer summer temperatures.

Producers with larger acreage may choose to start harvesting earlier, but harvesting silage too wet results in the loss of plant nutrients and produces undesirable, unpalatable, high butyric acid silage. Harvesting too dry causes oxygen to be trapped in the silage, prolonging the aerobic phase of fermentation and results in a poorly fermented product. Some have suggested mixing higher moisture alfalfa haylage with barley silage that's too dry. Either way, monitoring moisture is critical.

Harvesting barley as silage also provides an opportunity for earlier double cropping. This usually leads to higher corn silage yields. Dr. Greg Roth at Penn State estimates that planting corn silage following barley silage harvest in our region would yield about 83 percent compared to full-season corn silage. Waiting until grain harvest, yields were only 65 percent.

Quote Of The Week:

"This isn't a Keynesian recovery produced by big-spending bureaucrats. Instead, the recovery was created by the incentives of tax rate reductions, which shifted resources away from government back to American producers, savers, and investors."

Editor:

At a time when prices paid to area dairy farmers have dropped to the 1976-1977 era, one would think that the U.S. Congress would step in and take corrective measures.

Since April 1, 1981, when congress and former President Reagan, prevented an upward adjustment on the support price of manufactured milk products, dairy farmer's prices have bounced around like a yo-yo, usually on the downward swing.

Subsequent action taken by congress ince 1981 has cost taxpayers billions of dollars and usually their actions meant lower prices to dairy farmers. There are three things congress has never tried:

1. Pricing milk on the dairy farmer's cost of production.

2. A true milk supply management program.

3. Giving dairy farmers a fair share of the retail market price.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE EXILE

Background Scripture:
Ezra 1.
Devotional Reading:
Isaiah 52:7-12.

Beth, her daughter, and son-in-law are estranged. The son-in-law has told Beth she is never welcome in his house again — ever!

Turner and his wife, Anita, live together in the same house, but they each go their own way and they are husband and wife in name only — there is a wide gulf between them.

Vickie has been recuperating from a rare ailment for almost a whole year. Her job and her office have been given to someone else and, while she has been welcomed back, it is not the same.

Art wanders the city streets, holing up in a warm alley at night and scrounging food from the leftovers of other people. Once a successful merchant, he succumbed to the escape of alcoholism.

All of the above have something in common: they are all in exile. According to my dictionary, it means prolonged separation from one's home or country. People may be sent into exile, but many of us, like the prodigal son, manage it without any help.

Into Captivity

In 722 BC, the Assyrians devastated Israel. Most of the captors were carried off to Assyria and no one knows what happened to them. By the sixth century BC, the Assyrians had been superseded by the Babylonians, both situated in today's Iraq. In 598 BC the Babylonians overran Judah and many of the people were carried into captivity. This was especially hard for the exiles, because their religion had been totally centered in the Jerusalem temple, which lay in ruins.

It was in the Babylonian exile, however, that their religion showed its adaptability. Bereft of the temple, the exiles focused on the scriptures which were collected, edited, and distributed among the exiles. Then, in the middle of the sixth century BC, the Babylonian Empire eventually gave way to another, Persia (today's Iran), under the leadership of Cyrus. Jewish messianic hopes began to rise and Cyrus was sometimes regarded by the Jews as a messiah ("anointed one") by whom Israel would be restored. (See Isaiah 45:1; Daniel 9:26).

Cyrus, unlike his predecessors, followed a policy of tolerance and wisdom. In 536 BC. ". the Lord stirred up toe spirit of Cyrus king of Persia so that he made a proclamation throughout all his kingdom. . . ." (Ezra 1:1.) Cyrus also encouraged them to return to their homeland so that the temple might be rebuilt. And he backed up his invitation with the provision of funds for that purpose.

Making Changes

When we experience exile, like the Jews, we can adapt our faith to meet the challenge of change in our circumstances. When you can't change the conditions that surround you, you can change the way you react to them.

Take a look at your own life. Are you in exile and, if so, what changes do you need to make in order to maintain your faith?

Secondly, often the possibility to return from exile appears in an unexpected form or place. God continues to send us people like Cyrus who present us with the opportunity to end our exile.

Third, when we have the opportunity to end our exile, we must grasp it. We must seize the chance to be reconciled with someone, to undo the harm we have done or that has been done to us, to return humbly to that which we have neglected.

God permits us to make the decisions that lead us into exile, but it is his will that we return. "Then rose up the heads of the fathers' houses of Judah and Benjamin, and the priests and the Levites, every one whose spirit God had stirred. . . ." (1:5).

It happened there with them, and it can happen here with us. But first, an exile has to realize that he or she is an exile

East Fluid Milk And Cream Review

Madison, Wis.
May 28, 2003
Report Supplied by USDA

Spot prices of class II cream, dollars per lb. butterfat: F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: 1.3650-1.4881. Delivered Equivalent: Atlanta: 1.3541-1.4772 mostly 1.3787-1.4006.

PRICES OF CONDENSED SKIM, dollars per lb. wet solids, F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: Class II, includes monthly formula prices: .8500-.9300; Class III - spot prices - .7400-.8200.

SPOT SHIPMENTS OF GRADE A MILK: FLORIDA: This Week: In 0, Out 188; Last Week: In 0, Out 209; Last Year: In 0, Out 198. SOUTHEAST STATES: This week: In 0, Out 0; last week: In 0, Out 0; last year: In 0, Out 0.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Due to recent changes in milk supply agreements, milk import/export totals are not directly comparable to year ago figures and to shipments prior to April 1, 2003.

The base price for Class I milk for June 2003 is $9.74 per cwt., up $0.03 from May. A Class I differential specific to each pricing point (county) is added to the base price to determine the applicable Class I price. The Class II skim milk price for March is $6.62, up $0.01 from May.

Milk production is at or past the peak in most areas of the East. Some upward movement in the milk flow is noted in the far north where pastures and alfalfa are not yet available as feed. Cool, rainy weather for most of the spring has delayed field work and hay/green chop harvests in the Middle Atlantic and Northeast areas. Fluid milk supplies are more than ample, but getting back to normal after the Memorial Day weekend. Fluid milk supplies were excessive, but manageable during the long weekend. Few problems were noted and contacts report a hectic, but relatively easy holiday. Manufacturing plants were generally caught up by mid-week. Bottled milk sales are slower now than most Southern schools are closed for the summer. Florida has some "big-county" schools in session, which are still taking bottled milk. Milk shipments out of Florida are down from last week, but about what contacts expected. Northern schools have another few weeks still left in their school-year. However, contacts report a continued slow demand for bottled milk.

The condensed skim market is little changed, but prices are mixed; lower for Class II and higher for Class III. Spot interest for wet solids is lackluster. There were reports of some distressed loads moving to the Midwest during the long weekend.

The fluid cream market is rebounding after the holiday weekend. Many excess loads were available from Friday to Sunday, but orders improved for Monday and Tuesday deliveries. Spot prices were mostly higher as multiples were often higher this week and the CME butter average moved up fractionally last week. Ice cream sales in the East have been relatively slow all this spring. Most contacts cite the lack of nice weather. The holiday weekend brought rain and cool temperatures along the Coast and kept tourists away. Soft serve mix sales have been slow and hard ice cream orders just fair. Also, some ice cream producers shut down for an extra day over the weekend, which did help cream orders early this week. Bottled cream and aerosol cream production are about steady. Cream cheese production is mostly steady. Churning activity was heavy during the weekend, but easing as Class II cream demand rebounds this week.

Keep Diseases and Insects Out of Vegetable Crops

To protect the value of vegetables, keeping diseases and insects out of the picture is critical Dow AgroSciences has established itself as a leader in the horticultural crops arena with innovative products

Dithane* DF Rainshield* and Nova* 40W fungicides deliver broad-spectrum activity and are tank-mix compatible with other commonly used fungicides and insecticides

Protectant fungicides such as Dithane DF with Rainshield technology cover the outside of the plant, controlling fungus spores as they germinate. With the unique Rainshield technology, Dithane DF is more resistant to wash-off by rainfall or irrigation than other EDBC fungicides Dithane controls a wide range of disease pests — including anthracnose, leaf spots, fruit rots, downy mildew, gummy stem blight, scab and also early and late blight

Nova fungicide, a sterol inhibitor fungicide, is the standard for control of powdery mildew and rust on many vegetable crops It blocks specific biological pathways in the fungus and protects foliage and vegetables from infection of these pathogens.

Intrepid* 2F insecticide is the newest weapon available for protection from most lepidopteran pests, including armyworms and loopers. The active ingredient of Intrepid mimics the natural insect molting hormone, inducing a premature lethal molt of the larvae within hours of ingestion

SpinTor* 2SC Naturalyte* insect control stops pests like Colorado potato beetle, leafminers, armyworms, thrips and diamond-back moths. SpinTor provides control when the insect comes into contact with the product or when the insect ingests the product while feeding

Both Intrepid and SpinTor can fit into IPM programs They are safe to most beneficial insects, which help suppress populations of aphids and mites naturally Safety to beneficials has helped earn both Intrepid and SpinTor the EPA's Green Chemistry Award - awarded to chemistries designed to reduce risk in the environment

MILK PRODUCTION AND COLD STORAGE

- April milk production up 0.8 percent.
- Cow numbers drop.
- April stocks up.

Two very important statistical reports were released this past week. The first was the Milk Production Report. It indicated that the nation's milk supply is still growing, but at a much slower rate. The second was the Cold Storage Report. It showed the opposite — inventory is growing, particularly for butter.

First, the Milk Production Report. Once again, milk production is growing relative to year-ago levels. Milk production for 20 select states during April was up 0.8 percent relative to a year ago. But the critical number was the number of milking cows. For the first time in months, the number of cows on farms actually declined from the month before. That is very good news, because it indicates the month-over-month growth in cow numbers has hopefully subsided. We'll need to wait at least a few months to see if this pattern of reduced cow numbers persists. You will note that California, however, actually gained 4,000 head.

The Cold Storage Report announced inventory for butter and cheese at the end of April. Surprisingly, butter inventories were up 35 percent to 265.3 million pounds relative to last year. That's a lot of butter. But recall that butterfat production this time last year was actually depressed. Cheese inventories in April were also up, but not as much as butter. Natural American cheese was up 4 percent, whereas other cheese was down 6 percent. Overall, cheese inventories appear to be under control. That means a modest recovery in the cheese market can be expected if the milk supply continues to decline.

Our Dairy Plus Special Technology issue on June 28 focuses on ways producers can use the latest technology to aid them in improving efficiency and expanding the bottom line. Included are reports on a freestall sand separator, robotic milking, and other new items. Also included are a stray voltage update, veterinary reports, cooperative and dairy business news, and a calendar of events.

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Slaughter Cattle Weekly Review

Oklahoma City, Okla.
May 23, 2003
Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL SLAUGHTER CATTLE SUMMARY - Week Ending May 23: Slaughter cattle trade moderately tested in the north sales thus far were 2.00 lower on live and dressed basis. Trading at a near standstill in southern plains with sellers taking wait-and-see posture to lower packer bids. Sellers encouraged by reduction in supply caused by Canadian border closing and apparent continued strong beef demand.

Last Friday's Cattle On Feed's large placement numbers for April sent some negative vibrations through the trading complex as total numbers by next month could possibly be even with a year ago June 1 numbers. To the positive side carcass weights are low creating less tonnage for equal kill numbers to last year. Beef demand is considered positive to last year. Out front CME Live Cattle futures continue at apparent discounts to cash which should continue to pull cattle ahead of projected marketing dates. Boxed beef prices Friday a.m. averaged 134.82 up 1.78 from last Friday and up 8.52 from two weeks ago. Sales of slaughter cattle on a national basis for negotiated cash trades were only 79,600 through 10:00 a.m. Friday. Last week's full count was 243,000.

STEERS AND HEIFERS:

MIDWEST DIRECT MARKETS: Live Basis: 35-80 percent Choice, 900-1400 lbs 78.00-80.00, wtd avg 78.12. Dressed Basis: 35-80 percent Choice, 550-950 lbs. 123.00-126.00, wted avg 124.96.

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Review

St. Joseph, Mo.
Friday, May 23, 2003
Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL FEEDER & STOCKER CATTLE SUMMARY - Week Ending May 23 — Total Receipts: 289,100, last week 376,100; last year 309,700. Direct: 55,000, last week 114,500, last year 43,200. Video/Internet: 22,700, last week 38,000, last year 63,200. Auctions: 211,400, last week 223,600, last year 203,200. This weeks reported auction volume included 48 percent over 600 lbs and 44 percent heifers. Compared to last week; feeder steer and heifer prices ended steady to 1.00 higher with weakness noted on weights over 800 lbs, as supplies of those types continued heavy with the last of the graze-out yearlings coming to town. Calf numbers were tight in the Plains states and the bulk of the lightweights were sold east of Missouri and Arkansas, where prices were largely steady.

Cattle markets started this week with a full head of steam. Dressed beef values were at record levels and packers were paying 80.00 for premature showlists, causing cattle feeders to aggressively seek feedlot replacements. All this activity was temporarily put on hold Tuesday morning when reports surfaced that a Canadian cow had tested positive for BSE (Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy). The heart of the American beef industry skipped a beat as members feared the effect of the news. However, it soon became evident that the media was preoccupied with overseas terrorism and the raising of the national terror alert to High.

Most news agencies simply reported the facts of the case and passed on the release that was prepared by Secretary Veneman's office, which reassured Americans of the safety of our domestic beef supply. The United States seems to be satisfied with the measures that have been taken to isolate the case, or perhaps we have become hardened by the seemingly routine occurrence of terrorism, war, and natural disasters. In any event, by Wednesday morning most of the beef industry was wiping its brow and returning to the bandwagon of higher prices.

Direct feeder cattle trading was slow, but most late-week auctions were just as active as those that were held on Monday. Most feedlots refused lower bids for fed cattle with only moderate trading reported on Friday at mostly 79.00 and 125.00 in the beef. Meanwhile, the CME futures quickly rebounded and boxed beef cut-outs continued to reach new highs this week.

As we head into the huge outdoor grilling Memorial Day weekend the estimated weekly cattle slaughter is 763,000 head, which is largest since mid-June of 1996. If this inventory is cleaned-up over the weekend, the United States may actually benefit from Canadas troubles. Northern beef plants have already turned the slaughter cow market sharply higher to satisfy needs since the Canadian border was shut down early this week.

Florida Horse Moves Into Spotlight, Warms Annville Farmer's Cold Winter

Peace Rules' Success Radiates Rays All The Way To Pa.

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

ANNVILLE (Lebanon Co.) — Blair Minnich's words, "I just fell into this," may be the most succinct way of describing his life for the past several months.

Minnich, who has boarded horses at his farm in Annville for 18 years, has watched a financially-stressed winter warm into a prosperous spring.

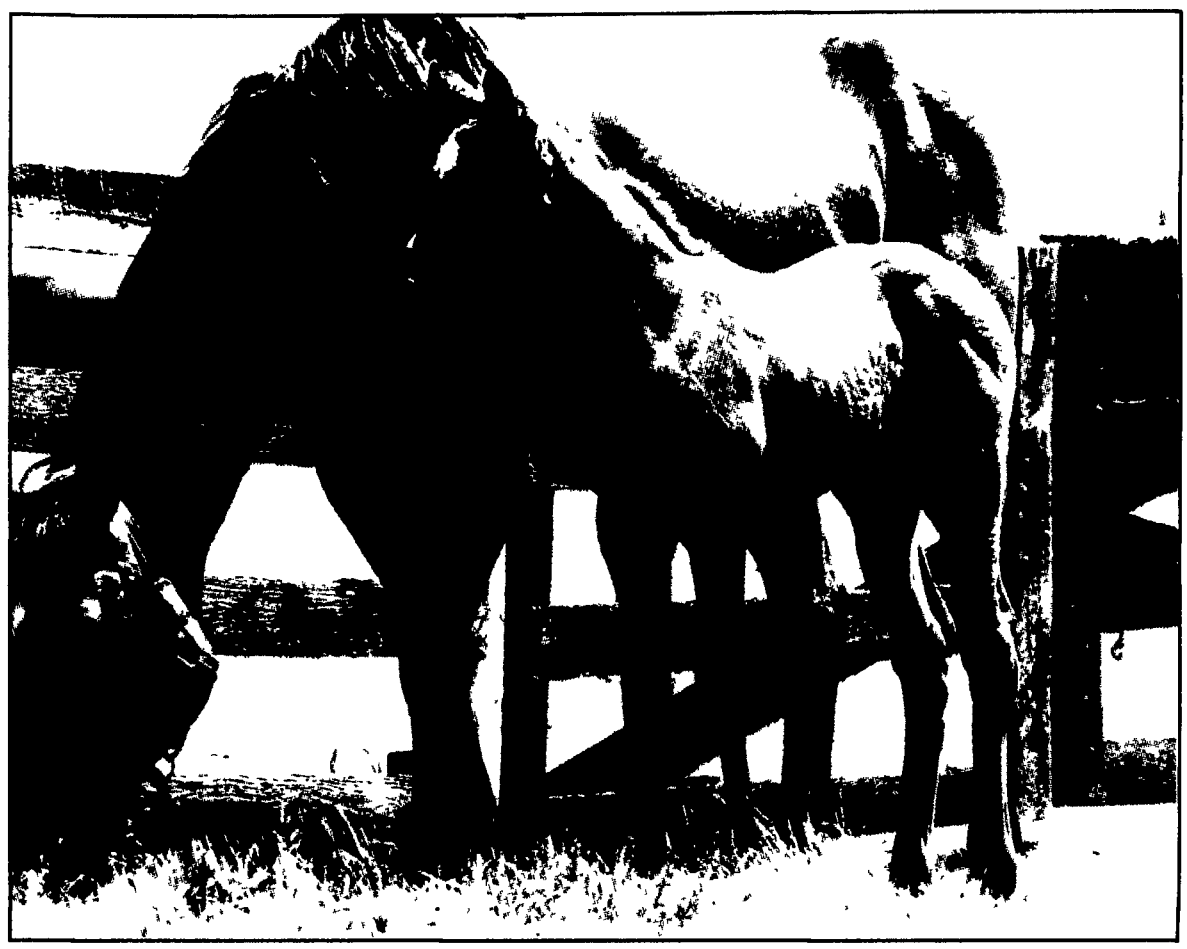
With the recent horseracing success of Florida-born Peace Rules, owners and breeders in the Thoroughbred world began searching for the foal's parents — and found the mare on Minnich's farm in Annville.

His mare, Hold To Fashion, a horse that had previously been a part of Minnich's fiscal problems, suddenly skyrocketed in worth.

Peace Rules

Peace Rules proved he could run, said Minnich, by winning stakes races in California, then coming east to win the Louisiana Derby (beating Derby and Preakness winner Funny Cide in the process) and the Bluegrass Stakes.

A horse qualifies to be in the Kentucky Derby by the amount of money winnings, "which is why they (owners and trainers) want to win the prep races," he said. Only the top 18 or so colts or fillies run in the Derby.



This picture, taken in May 2002, shows Hold To Fashion and her filly, a daughter of Forest Wildcat.

Three-year-old Peace Rules and his stablemate, Empire Maker, were the only two horses that earned more than $1 million this year and thus qualified the colts for the Derby.

Peace Rules has been among the top contenders in the first two of the triple crown races. He was edged out to finish third in the Kentucky Derby and nosed out to finish fourth in the Preakness.

The colt checked in with victories on both turf and track and caught the attention of trainer Bobby Frankel and Edmund and Bernice Gann, who bought the colt as a 2-year-old at a Saratoga sale.

Peace Rules' sire, "Jules," died of colic eight days before the Preakness. The stallion was the leading stud in Argentina at the time, and with the dawning success of his son, his owners were planning to bring him back to the U.S., said Minnich.

Jules' stud fee of $6,000 is modest in comparison to the $500,000 commanded by stallion Storm Cat, for example.

Lifetime Farmer

Born into a family that operated an Ayrshire dairy in Lehigh County, Minnich found his way to the racetrack because his brother was a trainer at Penn National Race Course.

Minnich has also retired from Pennsylvania Power and Light, but in addition to working for PP&L, he operated his own crop and horse farm in Lehigh County.

Eighteen years ago he moved to his Lebanon County farm, where he boards horses and keeps several Thoroughbreds to race at Penn National, Philadelphia, Delaware, and Maryland.

The operation includes 25 acres and approximately 16 of Minnich's own horses. He boards 15-20 horses at one time, however the horses may be at the track or sent off to a stud farm before they return to Minnich's farm to foal.

Florida Horse Sends Sunshine

About four years ago a client who had boarded horses at Minnich's operation for three years brought Peace Rules' dam, Hold To Fashion, to the Annville farm when Peace Rules was a yearling.

The mare was one of 14 that the client boarded at Minnich's farm.

The client's bill began to stack up, and with a tab of more than $40,000, the client began to look for ways to alleviate the debt.

Minnich's son Bryan, who had worked and studied for more than a year at a large horse farm in Kentucky, counseled his father to work out a deal with the client for Hold To Fashion.

The mare had the right conformation, her own racing victories, and a foal that was already racing and turning in wins.

She didn't come free, however. Minnich signed off much of the client's debt, then paid the mare's sale price, as she was sold for $18,000 in Ocala, Florida but not paid for.

He also paid the $25,000 stud fee in addition to $14,000 in boarding fees to the stud farm in Kentucky.

"I spent money I didn't have — and I normally don't do that — just to pay for this horse," said Minnich.

"I'm not a big guy and it was rough over the winter. I was boarding as many horses as I possibly could, just to make money" to pay the mare's fees.

To help him out of his money stresses, Minnich hoped to see a win out of one of his horses at the track.

However in August 2002 his promising filly, agitated by racetrack excitement, reared up and flipped over on the blacktop and killed herself, adding another layer to Minnich's woes.

With the harsh, cold winter increasing to Minnich's challenges, "I was wondering why I was even in the business. I guess the good Lord helped me out by sending this horse my way."

As Peace Rules began to create a buzz on the racing scene, calls began coming in to Minnich about the mare.

"We knew she was worth something, but not this kind of money," said Minnich, referring to the mare's upsurge in value with the success of her son.

A Kentucky sales agent company believes the mare is now worth $750,000. Already 14 years old, she could produce foals until she is 22-24 years old.

Now in foal to Thunder Gulch, winner of the Derby and Belmont, and third in the Preakness in 1995, the mare may be sold at a Keeneland, Kentucky sale in November, decided Minnich.

She also has a foal at her side. After purchasing and foaling out Hold To Fashion, Minnich bred the mare to Forest Wildcat, son of famed Storm Cat.

The result, a filly, now a yearling, is now in his hands. Minnich is deciding whether to sell the filly at a sale in Saratoga in August or a Kentucky sale in July.

Close Calls

Minnich has already had a number of close calls with the pair.

"I had the horse (Hold To Fashion) sold for $40,000 but the buyer couldn't come up with the money," he said.

He also had the filly tagged for sale. "I was going to sell her for $100,000 but the deal fell through," he said. Minnich was told the filly is worth approximately $250,000-$350,000 because of the success of her older half-brother.

"Every time a deal fell through, I just thought 'I guess that was not supposed to happen,'" he said.

The filly may be sold this summer in a Kentucky sale, and Minnich plans to travel down to watch the sale, "or bring her back to race" if the price isn't right.

Hold To Fashion, a speed horse herself — running best at distances less than a mile — tends to produce speed horses, according to Minnich. She won her first race by 12½ lengths, he said.

Peace Rules is also a speed horse, said Minnich. "Speed horses have to go out front," said Minnich. "They (jockeys) can take more out of a horse by holding it back.

"They almost have to let them go there and see what they'll do, then when the others start coming, pour it on," he said.

At the time Hold To Fashion was sold in Ocala, Florida, the mare was carrying Wild Kipper, a foal by Kipper Kelly, and foaled on Minnich's farm. Minnich has decided to keep and race the colt, now training in Florida.

The colt will come back to Pennsylvania by July, where he

Additionally a speed workout about once a week will ready Wild Kipper to race in the fall in Philadelphia, Saratoga, or Belmont, "it depends on how far along we are with him and how he looks," said Minnich.

"I told the trainer after the Derby, 'next year we're going down to the Derby and we're going to show them how it's done,'" said Minnich. "That's just wishful thinking but hey, you never know."

measures to protect the stream from the erosion and pollution that was occurring from the cattle. The cattle would do most of their grazing in the area of the stream where the grass was lush and water was plentiful. By constructing stream bank fencing with a livestock stream crossing, they have protected almost a half-mile of the stream.

Prior to protection of the stream, the cattle had unlimited access and would cross, lounge, and drink wherever they wanted. The quality of the water they drank naturally was not in the best interests of the animals' health. By erecting permanent fencing along the stream, 15 feet on both sides is now off-limits to the cattle and protected from erosion and pollution.

Along with the installation of stream bank fencing, a livestock stream crossing was constructed by installing six hog slats, 20 tons of 2B stone, and geotextile fabric to protect the streambed by providing a stable surface for the cattle to use when crossing the stream.

At first Schertel was concerned that the herd seemed hesitant to cross at the designated area, but that concern was short lived as they became accustomed to the new surroundings.

The Schertel family has already noticed the results of their efforts. Where once the stream was suffering from the free access of the cattle, there is now a pristine stream, not only providing a cleaner and safer source of water for their cattle but also feeding into the nearby creek used by hundreds of people for fishing, recreation, and sources of drinking water to nearby cities.

Water samples taken before and after construction of the conservation methods show a dramatic improvement in the water quality. While the improvement at test site #1 went from 50 colonies of fecal coliform bacteria per 100 milliliters to 45 colonies per 100 milliliters, the results of test site #2 and #3 were quite impressive. Fecal coliform bacteria are used as an indicator of the sanitary quality of the water. Results of test site #2 improved from 355 colonies per 100 milliliters to 52 colonies per 100 milliliters. Even more impressive were the results of test site #3 with 1,390 colonies per 100 milliliters, which decreased to less than one colony of fecal coliform per 100 milliliters. One can readily see the physical improvements of the area; however, test results are further verification that protective measures to eliminate or control erosion and pollution are effective.

The Schertels also noticed that since the cattle now graze the slopes of the valley instead of only the bottom area, not only is the vegetation being better managed but also the manure is spread throughout the pasture instead of being concentrated and flowing into the stream.

As a further measure of improving the drinking water quality, the Schertels installed a livestock watering system using the now-clean stream as the source of water. They use a one-half horsepower pump and one inch PVC pipe to pump water up a steep incline to a new roofed feedlot building, where the cattle have access to a two-nose livestock waterer.

The electric is provided from an existing building attached to the new feedlot shelter. The new system has the capacity of providing 1,200 gallons of water per day. According to Schertel, the stream has never gone dry; however, the family has two wells near the house and original bank barn that could be relied on if needed and still be able to provide the water to the feedlot building.

A few years ago the family constructed a Quonset shelter on higher ground as a bedding area for the cattle. However, with the water source and lush grass on the bottomland, the cattle preferred to use a small implement shelter for lounging, staying near their water source. Although the newer shelter was on higher ground, the area surrounding the building would still have an accumulation of manure from the cattle as well as mud during periods of rain or melting snow.

As a means of eliminating this situation, a roofed feedlot and manure stacking pad were erected onto the one end of the Quonset hut. The 37-foot by 100-foot open-sided feedlot and manure pad has 4-foot concrete walls with a cantilevered roof that eliminates odors and provides increased air circulation. Thirty feet of the new pole building is used as a manure stacking pad, with the concrete floor sloped to provide a pit-type effect, where approximately 90 days of manure can be stored.

Between the manure pad and the Quonset hut bedding area is 70 feet used as a feedlot where the cattle have access to round bales, free-choice minerals, and shelter from the elements. The free-choice minerals are offered to the cattle by recycling a rear tractor tire. Schertel wedged a piece of 2-inch by 4-inch lumber crosswise inside the top of the tire to keep it apart. The tire is then hung from the overhead support system of the building and secured along the side wall, thus allowing the animals access from only one side of the tire.

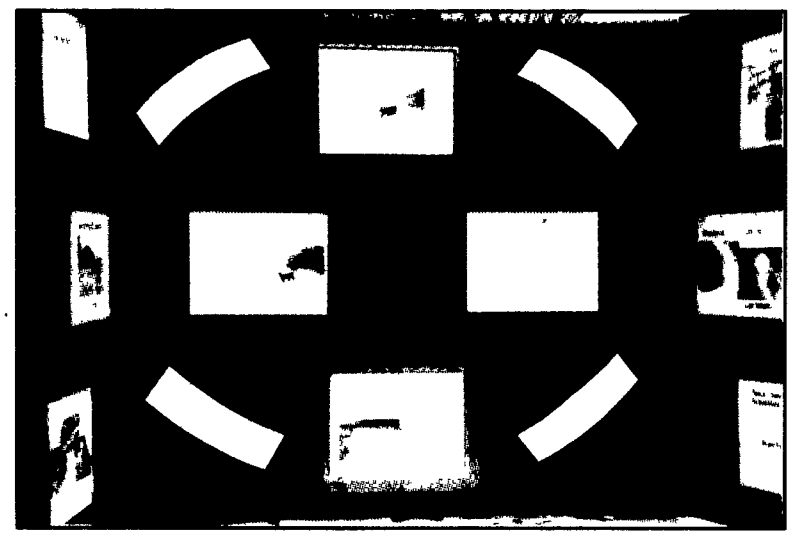
The mineral blocks or free-choice minerals are put inside the bottom of the tire. The concrete floor of the new building is grooved for better footing of the animals. There is a foundation drain along the one side of the feedlot and storage pad that helps collect the water along the steep slope behind the new building.

The roofed runoff system directs rain water through roof gutters, drop boxes, and a piping system into the stream, where prior to the construction of this building, rain water and melting snow would mix with the manure and make its way down the steep slope to the stream.

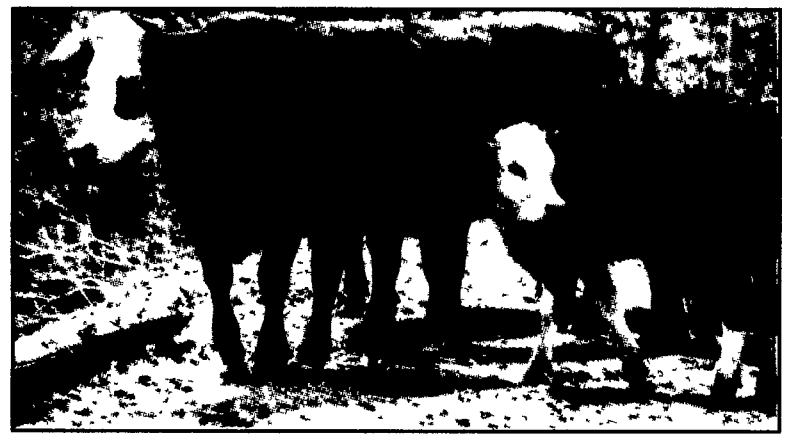
Since all phases of this conservation project tied into each other, they were all completed as one big project. With flag marking for the stream bank fencing starting in June 2002 and the covered feedlot being completed in January 2003, the past year has been a busy one at the Schertel farm.

The goal of protecting and improving the quality of the stream flowing through their property has been accomplished by providing limited drinking and crossing access to the stream, providing a drinking source in the feedlot area, providing a roofed area for the cattle to feed and lounge, and by providing a roofed manure storage pad.

Implementing these best management practices (BMP) was accomplished through the cooperation of the Schertel family, Ducks Unlimited (DU), Lehigh County Conservation District, Southeast Resources and Conservation and Development Council (SEPA RC &D), Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection Growing Greener Grant, 319 Clean Water Act Program, Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS), and Retired and Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP).



The Lehigh County Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) erected this "before and after," display showing the many conservation measures undertaken at the Lynn Township farm of Mark, Marie, and George Schertel during the past year.



Some of the Schertel's cow-calf herd cautiously waits for the opportunity to enter the roofed feedlot during a recent tour of the conservation measures constructed on the farm to protect the quality of the stream and water that flows through the pasture.

Looking downhill at part of the Schertel's cattle pasture, an observer can clearly see the benefits of stream bank fencing and the livestock stream crossing. A substantial improvement in water quality was realized by these conservation measures.

Congressman Don Sherwood (R-PA), Bernie Sanders (I-VT), and Dave Obey (D-WI) are pursuing different avenues to correct the inequities facing dairy farmers.

Sen. Specter, Sen. Pat Leahy, and Sen. Snow have made repeated efforts to bring attention to the disparity between dairy farmer's prices and the retail prices of dairy products in many stores. I'm very aware of the strong competitiveness in the retail business, but I want to point out a few things I continue to find.

This past winter, Giant Food Mart store in Wellsville, N.Y. was selling Land-O-Lakes butter for $4.95 per pound (wholesale price in Chicago was $1.05 per pound). We continually see Land-O-Lakes butter selling for more than $3 a pound in many stores. The same USDA Grade AA butter sells for $1.67 per pound in all Redners stores. Why the difference? These gouging prices are going on while processors are paying the lowest price for milk for butter since 1976.

Walmart stores in Dickson City, Tunkhannock, Pittston, and Wilkes-Bare are selling Walmart brand name milk (G.V.) at the Pennsylvania milk marketing board's minimum price of $2.52 per gallon (April 2003). The large Dean Food Company bottles a large amount of Walmart's G.V. milk. However, Dickson City Walmart also sells Lehigh Valley milk for around $3.18 per gallon. Guess who owns Lehigh Valley? Dean Foods! The bottling plant number is the same on the G.V. milk as the Lehigh Valley milk (provably Lansdale). Why the two prices of $2.52 and $3.18?

Even more confusing, Dickson City Walmart also handles Swiss brand milk from Lebanon County. Guess who owns the Swiss Company? You're right — Deans Foods! Dickson City Walmart sells the Swiss milk for about $3.13 per gallon.

So, Deans Foods is involved in all the milk at Dickson City Walmart, but look at what consumers are being charged.

Boyers Market in Berwick, handles only Swiss milk. Guess what Boyers sells the same Swiss milk for? $2.52 per gallon.

Everywhere you travel you see Schwann's trucks making home deliveries of various frozen foods. I understand the products are good. However, on their price list they list 2½ gallons of vanilla ice cream for more than $20. This equates to about $4.20 per half gallon. you can buy good ice cream at Redners Market for $1.79 per half gallon. I realize there is a difference in cream content in various ice creams, but not to that degree.

Some companies are slipping in the 1¾-quart containers in the freezers (a half gallon is 2 quarts). The companies say the ingredients are costing more. However, the milk and cream used for ice cream command the same 1977 price to dairy farmers.

Schwann's also belongs to the International Dairy Foods Association, better known as IDFA. IDFA shows up at many milk hearings and opposes increases to dairy farmers. They fought vigorously against dairy compacts. Two of their strongest allies against dairy compacts in the U.S. Senate were Sen. Kuhl (D-WI) and Senator Santorum (R-PA).

Recently IDFA awarded Schwann's Food Company their second annual Grand Pioneer Award for Schwann's outstanding efforts in implementing a company grass-roots program, geared for Schwann's officials and employees to communicate with elected officials. There isn't anything wrong with the grass-roots program except the Schwann's are helping to maintain dairy farmer's prices at the 1976-1977 level. Several calls we made to Schwann's officials were not returned.

Breakstone butter sells for more than $3 per pound in many stores. We're not sure who owns Breakstone, but their butter wrappers make reference to Kraft Foods. Remember Kraft? They are the company that is using imported MPCs in many of their cheeses and cheese products. The FDA says Mr. Kraft, you should not use MPCs but their packages still carry MPC on the labels. Oh, that's right — Kraft says we will rename our cheeses to comply with the FDA ruling.

Restaurants, like retail stores, are highly competitive and must be able to charge a fair price or else they are gone. I like to stop at Denny's for their Slam Bang Pancake Special. As I glazed down their menu, they listed a small glass of milk at $1.33 per glass. Of course, they need a markup, but their price comes to more than $20 per gallon, or $240 per cwt. Local dairy farmers receive $12.74 per cwt for milk that is bottled ($1.10 per gallon).

Hershey Foods opposed the Dairy Compact at the Williamsport hearing. It was the dairy farmer's good friend Pennsylvania Sen. Roger Madigan that cross-examined the Hershey officials and revealed some of their milk was coming from the Atlanta area.

It's time for our elected officials to step in and see that the USDA prices milk fairly to our dairy farmers. This can be done without gouging consumers.

Consumers — please do not buy milk for $3.18 per gallon when you can buy the same milk for $2.52 per gallon. Please do not pay $3 or $4 for a pound of butter when many stores sell the same grade of butter for less than $2 per pound. And, please do not buy cheeses that contain MPCs. Contact your elected officials and tell them you want your milk and milk products produced in the good old USA.

Editor:

We are writing this letter to you in hopes that perhaps we are not the only ones who are against "The New Milk Program." We are referring to Cooperatives Working Together, also known as "Leadership Taking Advantage."

We are against this program!! The East is in a milk deficit area. Why should we pay to help to get rid of a surplus that is not in the east? Besides the fact that we can't afford to lose $.18 from our milk check. Where was our great cooperative leadership and their thinking two years ago when we were making a profit milking cows? Did they not have the foresight to see that unchecked expansion out west was going to destroy our milk market nationwide?

Yes, our dairy industry is at a terrible crossroads and we are not arguing that something needs to be done. However, having said that, we do not believe this farmer-funded program is the right way to do it. How about asking the financial institutes for some help? They were the ones that had all the money to loan for all these new huge facilities. Or maybe, just maybe, they are behind this program? Our largest milk cooperatives are in serious financial trouble, also. Why? This is the same leadership that thinks getting bigger is the answer.

I'm sure this letter, if printed, will generate much discussion. That's the idea, if you are a member of one of The Cooperatives.

Now is the time to ask some hard questions.

MARKET COWS
Galen Kopp
Extension Agent
— Dairy/Livestock
Lebanon County

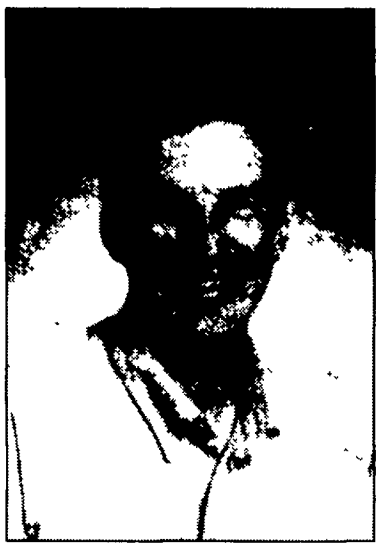
What do we know about the quality of these animals? As dairy producers, we send our cull cows off to market with very little knowledge of the quality of these critters as well as knowing very little about any drug residues left in them from previous treatments.

At a recent workshop, we as extension educators observed first hand the many issues packers deal with after they receive market (cull) cows at the slaughterhouse.

Every time you cull an animal you are making the same commitment to food safety and quality that you make when you market your milk. Marketing cull dairy cows in better condition, a result of effective monitoring, puts more dollars in your pocket and makes the industry more competitive.

Cows in the 2.5 to 3 body conditions score range produce the most valuable carcasses for beef processing. In addition to losing volume as beef animals, low milk cows that are kept past freshness, or health compromised cows kept until they are overtly biologically broken, are not putting income back into your operation. They are costing you money and taking up space that a more productive animal could be using.

Dairy producers benefit when they view themselves as important contributors of valued beef products, and approach culling as a positive, productive, and profitable function of dairy herd management. Of the value-added beef items growing in popularity with food service distributors and consumers, products using non-fed beef make the top 10 list every time. These opportunities for increasing market value rely on quality. The same management and culling practices that assure quality beef also make the milking herd more productive and profitable.



Galen Kopp

Producers should consider the industry's public image and trust when making decisions to keep, treat, or cull dairy cattle. When milk price, facilities, and replacement availability fail to compel timely and voluntary culling decisions, then beef value, farm profits, and the image of the beef and dairy industry all suffer. Most producers see the cows as just milk production, not beef production.

Economic Ripples Of Canadian BSE Case Felt In Pennsylvania

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Pennsylvania dairy farmers and meat packers will feel the effects of a ban on Canadian cattle imports prompted by the discovery of bovine spongiform encephalopathy (BSE) — or mad cow disease — in a cow in the province of Alberta.

Canada exported 1.7 million live cattle to the United States last year, and a significant number of Canadian animals typically end up in Pennsylvania.

"Traditionally, Pennsylvania has imported live cattle from Canada for dairy and beef breeding, as well as for slaughter in meat production," says Larry Hutchinson, extension veterinarian in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. "Although I know of no meat packer in Pennsylvania that relies solely on Canadian cattle, those that do import from Canada will have to seek other sources of supply until the ban is lifted."

BSE attacks the brain and central nervous system of cattle, leading to weakness, loss of coordination, loss of appetite and eventually death. The disease, which is not contagious, is caused by abnormal proteins — called prions — that are thought to be transmitted through feed containing rendered byproducts of infected animals. BSE has been linked to a similar illness in humans, a variant of Creutzfeldt-Jakob disease.

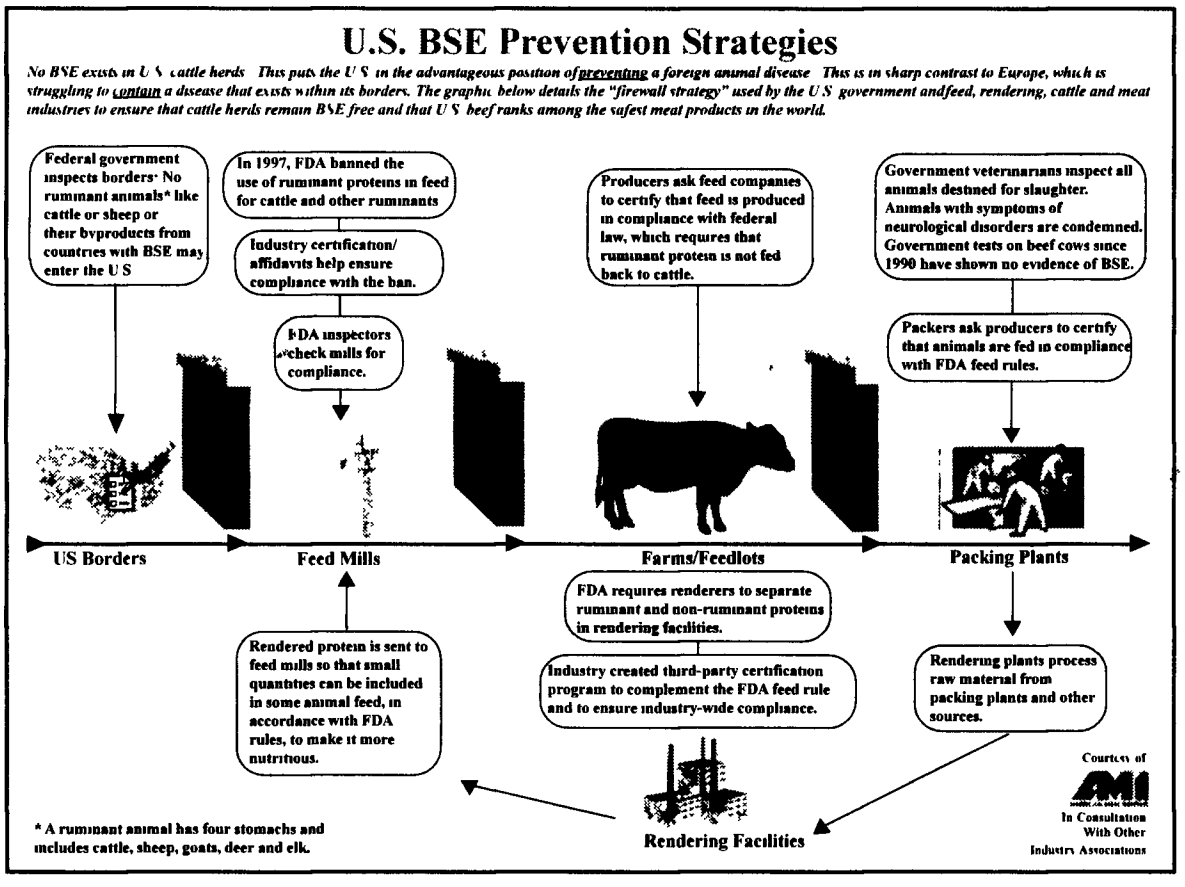
The United States has banned imports of cattle and cattle products from countries where BSE is known to exist. No cases of the disease have been found in the United States.

The diagnosis of mad cow disease in Canada is likely to affect retail sales of beef. But Hutchinson says U.S. consumers still can enjoy their steaks and burgers.

"The prions that cause BSE are not present in the muscles of an infected animal, so the meat itself is safe," Hutchinson explains. "They are in the brain and spinal cord, and it's possible during processing that spinal cord material in particular can contaminate the meat. But consumers in a BSE-free country such as the United States can be well assured that their beef is safe to eat."

In addition to the import restrictions, the United States in 1990 established a herd surveillance program to detect possible cases of mad cow disease. In 1997, the Food and Drug Administration also banned the use of rendered mammalian proteins in cattle feed.

"After more than a decade of close scrutiny, the United States remains BSE-free," says Hutchinson. "But with world trade being so diverse and far-reaching today, we must continue to be vigilant against this and other foreign animal diseases."



U.S. BSE Prevention Strategies
No BSE exists in U S cattle herds This puts the U S in the advantageous position of preventing a foreign animal disease This is in sharp contrast to Europe, which is struggling to contain a disease that exists within its borders. The graphic below details the "firewall strategy" used by the U S government andfeed, rendering, cattle and meat industries to ensure that cattle herds remain BSE free and that U S beef ranks among the safest meat products in the world.
Federal government inspects borders· No ruminant animals* like cattle or sheep or their byproducts from countries with BSE may enter the U S
In 1997, FDA banned the use of rumimant proteins in feed for cattle and other ruminants
Industry certification/ affidavits help ensure compliance with the ban.
FDA inspectors check mills for compliance.
Producers ask feed companies to certify that feed is produced in compliance with federal law, which requires that ruminant protein is not fed back to cattle.
Government veterinarians inspect all animals destined for slaughter. Animals with symptoms of neurological disorders are condemned. Government tests on beef cows since 1990 have shown no evidence of BSE.
Packers ask producers to certify that animals are fed in compliance with FDA feed rules.
US Borders
Feed Mills
Farms/Feedlots
Packing Plants
FDA requires renderers to separate ruminant and non-ruminant proteins in rendering facilities.
Industry created third-party certification program to complement the FDA feed rule and to ensure industry-wide compliance.
Rendering plants process raw material from packing plants and other sources.
Rendered protein is sent to feed mills so that small quantities can be included in some animal feed, in accordance with FDA rules, to make it more nutritious.

NOFA-NJ Schedules Organic Farming Field Days

PENNINGTON, N.J. — The Northeast Organic Farming Association of New Jersey (NOFA-NJ) is offering four educational field days for the 2003 growing season. All events are open to the public free of charge, but pre-registration with the NOFA-NJ office is requested.

The first event will take place Tuesday, June 10, from 6 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. at Cherry Grove Farm in Lawrence Township, N.J.

Entitled "Get Your Hands Dirty: Evaluating Soil Health," the evening will feature hands-on activities for testing key indicators of soil quality, including percolation rate, aggregate stability, bulk density, compaction, and pH. The program will be led by Dan Kluchinski of Mercer County extension, Dr. Joe Heckman of the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station, and Chris Smith of the USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service. One-on-one soil test consultations will be available on a first-come, first-served basis during a pre-meeting, brown bag dinner hour.

Cherry Grove Farm consists of two independent farm businesses. Cherry Grove Organic Farm CSA, operated by Matt Conver, grows certified organic vegetables and flowers for sale at farmers markets and through a Community Supported Agriculture program, while Cherry Grove Farm proper markets grassfed beef, pork, lamb, and free range eggs under the direction of Kelly Harding. Both farmers will be on hand at the event to talk about their operations and answer questions.

NOFA-NJ's second summer event is scheduled at the Muth Family Farm, 1639 Pitman-Downer Road, Williamstown, N.J. on Friday, June 20, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Sponsored in cooperation with The Rodale Institute (Initiative for Future Agriculture and Food Systems, USDA-CSREES), The Northeast Organic Network (NEON), and Rutgers Cooperative Extension of Gloucester County, this field day will focus on "Transitioning to Organic Vegetable Production in South Jersey."

Bob and Leda Muth will give a tour of their 27-acre, second generation farm, one-third of which is now certified organic, and describe how they have adjusted their marketing, equipment, and soil management strategies as they have transitioned from conventional vegetable production. Other speakers and topics will include Dr. Anu Rangarajan of Cornell University's Department of Horticulture on "Ramping Up Research and Education in Organic Agriculture," Gloucester County Extension Agent Michelle Infante-Casella on "Cover Crop Rotations," Erich Bremer of NOFA-NJ on "Complying with the National Organic Program," and David Wilson and Matt Ryan of The Rodale Institute on "Research Results from the Farming Systems Trials" and "Using Compost Teas." Registration for this event is requested by June 16. Lunch will be served.

NOFA-NJ will continue its "Summer Sunday Farm Tour" series on June 22 at Keller Farm, 601 Moss Mill Road, Germania, N.J. From 2 p.m. to 4 p.m., farmer Jim Brandt will host a tour of his nine-acre mixed vegetable and poultry farm in Atlantic County. NOFA-NJ certified since 1998, Jim sells to restaurants and at his on-farm stand. He also has a strong interest in alternative energies, using solar panels, a geothermal heat pump, and a windmill to power the farm. Refreshments will be served.

On Wednesday, July 9, NOFA-NJ will host "An Organic Success Story" Field Day at Spiral Path Farm in Loysville, just west of Harrisburg.

This event is offered in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture (PASA). Spiral Path is a 60-acre, diversified farm serving wholesale markets as well as a 250-member CSA. In 2001 it was selected as one of eleven 'focal farms' for the Northeast Organic Network (NEON).

The NEON focal farm project is conducting case studies of how exceptional organic farms in the Northeast manage soil fertility, pests, weeds, and other systems.

Farmers Mike and Terra Brownback will give a tour, while NEON researchers Anu Rangarajan, David Conner, Chuck Mohler, and Brian Caldwellll summarize NEON findings with regard to farm budgeting, crop rotations, and pest management.

To request a calendar of events, event brochures, or to register for one of these events, contact Bonnie McGee at (609) 737-6848 or bmcgee@nofanj.org, or visit the NOFA-NJ Website at www.nofanj.org.

years of experience in a number of organizations to his new position as Farm Show director. A Harrisburg resident, Nielsen most recently served as chief executive officer of the Pennsylvania Alliance for Association Advancement. He has also served as a senior-level executive at the International Association of Convention and Visitor Bureaus, Pennsylvania Academy of Family Physicians, and Metzner-Nielsen Associates.

Nielsen's work has included bipartisan relations, creative organizational growth strategies, and financial development. He has a master's degree from Lincoln University.

"With his extensive business and professional experience, team-oriented leadership style, and results-focused management practices, (Nielsen) will lead the Farm Show Complex as it develops a stronger event base and strengthens its fiscal position," Wolff said.

Nielsen could not be reached for comment before Lancaster Farming press time this week.

As new chief of Show Management, Weaver will be responsible for coordinating the activities of the livestock show section, the agriculture/equine show section, and the non-agricultural show section.

Weaver is a fourth-generation owner and manager of Weaverland Valley Farms in New Holland and a former vice president and manager for Trileaf Tobacco Company. He is a member of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, National Cattlemen's Beef Association, and the Garden Spot Young Farmers Chapter.

"(Weaver's) strong agricultural background and knowledge base will be critical for his new position at the Farm Show," Wolff said.

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Farm Show Bureau operates and maintains the 60-acre Farm Show Complex to help promote agriculture and commerce. The complex contains 20 acres under one roof and has more than one million square feet of exhibition, conference, and banquet space.

Recent construction to the complex added 350,000 square feet of exhibition space, an Exposition Hall totaling 175,000 square feet, an equine arena, and a new livestock barn. In addition to four state-sponsored shows, the complex hosts more than 200 trade shows, exhibits, and activities annually.

Monsours Receive Loan

Jack also breeds and sells his well bred and trained dogs.

Guests might watch sheep shearing. One lady who loved sheep got to bottle feed a lamb.

Those visiting the Monsour farm might also go biking or bird watching, cross-country skiing, or shoot clay pigeons.

"Each group is different," Kathy said. "Some like to visit the surrounding areas, some like to meander the streets of Bedford, and still others enjoy staying on the farm."

Kathy said, "A lot of people come for family reunions." Since Bedford is centrally located, it is easy for those traveling from various parts of the state can meet at the Monsour farm.

The land easily dates back to pre-Revolutionary times. There is a pre-Revolutionary cemetery on the farm that has attracted at least one guest who is doing her geneology and will arrive from Arizona later in the summer.

Guests at the vacation home come from both the city and country. Fall Foliage is always booked solid. Fishermen like the nearby streams. Skiiers love Blue Knob in the winter.

No matter who arrives, they will be met with something homebaked. "Sometimes it's an apple pie and sometimes it's a birthday or anniversary cake," Kathy said. "We try to make everyone's occasion special."

The Rendell loan will allow the Monsours to both purchase more lambs and also the adjoining farm which will give them a total of 520 picturesque acres.

"Vacation homes seem to be in growing demand," Kathy said.

Part of the loan will be used to finish the "Shepherd's View" apartment, a second story chalet that will sleep six comfortable and located on the present farm. A large deck will offer a spectacular view of the rolling pastures and Evitt's Mountain. It will be heated in winter and cooled in summer.

The additional farm includes a farm house, which is a five bedroom country estate suitable for a large reunion of 15. The home features a wrap-around porch, fireplace, a spacious kitchen, and a game room. Guests can fish in their own private farm or picnic in an indoor pavilion.

Kathy has designs on a out building located on the property. She wants to turn it into a playhouse for children.

The fourth home will be for those who enjoy "roughing it" a bit. A primitive one-room cabin sits atop the highest peak on the farm and offers an amazing view of the Allegheny Mountains.

Reminiscent of days of old, the cabin features an antique stove, outdoor fire pit, and great front porch and sleeps four.

The cabin could be rented in conjunction with one of the other vacation homes.

None of the homes allow pets or smoking.

Jack said their sheep farming is practical and all-natural pastoral agriculture.

He utilizes a rotational/free range grazing system which enables him to raise lamb and wool on lush, indigenous, bio-diverse clover and grass pastures without the use of antibiotics, growth hormones, herbicides, pesticides, or genetically altered feeds.

"We're excited about everything," Jack said. "We figure it will either keep us young or make us old."

They are happy to have the expertise of their communications major son, Jackson. Burt is more animal-oriented and enjoys working with the sheep.

All sheep marketing is done through a broker except for lamb meat, which is sold straight from the farm.

The Monsours can be reached at monsour bedford.net, have a Website at bedfordcounty.net/monsour, or by phone at (814) 623-8243.

PFB Testifies For Higher Milk Premiums

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — With dairy farmers facing the worst economic situation in more than 20 years, the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau has urged the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board (PMMB) to adopt an over-order price for dairymen of at least a $1.65 per hundredweight (cwt.) of milk for the remainder of 2003.

Farm Bureau Dairy Specialist Joel Rotz testified on behalf of the organization at a PMMB hearing on the over-order price held in Harrisburg today.

"In the absence of a mandated over-order premium, current federal order prices and projections of lower-than-average price levels for the last half of this year will cause the average Pennsylvania dairy producer to receive milk prices below levels needed to meet costs of production and provide a reasonable profit," Rotz, said. "At a time when both cow numbers and production are in decline in the state, the (Milk Marketing) Board must do what it can to bring price relief to all producers servicing the Pennsylvania market."

The current over-order premium, paid to producers of Class I (fluid) milk produced, processed and sold within Pennsylvania's boundaries, is scheduled to end June 30.

"While national milk production continues to grow, Pennsylvania production continues to falter," Rotz said. "We are witnessing Pennsylvania's dairy industry losing its national market share to other regions of the country. It threatens the entire agriculture infrastructure in the state. We must do everything feasible to provide producers with the best possible price that market conditions will allow in keeping the dairy industry viable in Pennsylvania."

SCHUYLKILL COUNTY FAIR SETS ENTERTAINMENT

The Schuylkill County Fair will celebrate its 20th Anniversary, "Mountains of Memories" July 28-Aug. 2 at the Schuylkill County Fairgrounds, Rt. 895, Summit Station.

About 30,000 visitors enjoyed last year's fair during a weeklong heat advisory, and this year's entertainment lineup, as well as the addition of a third weeklong family show, should have everyone eager to attend the Schuylkill County Fair.

Monday, July 28, sponsored by Martin's Motor Home Rentals and Pine Grove Landfill/Waste Management will feature Ryan Pelton, one of the best Elvis impersonators. Also, you won't want to miss the first ever Draft Horse Pull competition at the fair.

"If you've ever been to the Farm Show, it's hard to get a seat in the large arena for the horse pulls," said Bob Evanchalk, livestock chairman. "Most of the pullers are from northern Pennsylvania and New York, and we're real happy we were able to entice them to Schuylkill County."

On Tuesday, Rebecca Lynn Howard, a hot new Nashville singer with her Number 1 hit single "Forgive" will grace the main stage. Rebecca has been nominated for two Academy of Country Music awards including Top New Female Vocalist and Song of the Year. Her hit video "Forgive" was nominated for the CMT Flameworthy Female Video of the Year. Admission for kids 12 and under on Tuesday will be $5, thanks to sponsors, Alcoa and Arthur 'Pat' Aungst, Inc.

Wednesday, gospel favorites, The Wilburns will take the stage on Senior Citizen Day sponsored by South Schuylkill Printing and Publishing and Copycat Business Systems. The Wilburns, have been singing Southern gospel music for 33 years. Hits like "Resting Place," "Another Crossing," "Coming Out Of The Wilderness," and "God's Promised Land" are sure to please fairgoers.

"Seniors 60 and older will be admitted for $5 on Wednesday and special entertainment will include the Dan and Galla Variety Show, a King and Queen contest, and lots more fun for seniors," said Grace Karrer, senior events coordinator.

On Thursday, The Grass Roots will perform some of their oldie hits including "Temptation Eyes," "Midnight Confessions," and "Let's Live For Today" thanks to sponsor Pioneer Pole Buildings. From their first hit, "Where Were You When I Needed You," in 1966 they had a string of 14 top 40 hits that kept the band on the charts nearly every week. "Spend an evening with The Grass Roots and you'll be singing 'Sooner Or Later'," said Ron Blew, entertainment coordinator.

Thanks to sponsor Schaeffer's Harley Davidson/Buell, Nashville recording artist Steve Holy will perform his Number 1 hit and the Number 4 Top Country Song of 2002, "Good Morning Beautiful" at the Schuylkill County Fair on Friday. Top 20's "Blue Moon" and "The Hunger" compliment his latest release, "Rock A Bye Heart" which is 37th on the country charts.

"Steve's second show was rained out two years ago when he filled in for Clay Davidson, who was in a car accident. We knew we had to get him back because the crowd just loved him, especially when he sang 'Good Morning Beautiful' which hadn't even hit the charts at that time," said Kim Morgan of the fair entertainment committee.

On Saturday, Aug. 2, Davy Jones of The Monkees, will invade the Schuylkill County Fairgrounds with hits "Daydream Believer," "Last Train To Clarksville," "I'm a Believer," and many more! Davy Jones first invaded teen hearts as the international idol of millions in the 1960's Emmy Award winning TV classic "The Monkees." Davy has triumphed as both a serious actor and a comedian on the theatrical stage; as a rock musician, composer and artist; and true to his first love, as an extremely able horseman.

"The Schuylkill County Visitors Bureau made this all possible. Without their support, we simply would not have been able to afford such a quality entertainer like Davy Jones," said Craig Morgan, fair chairman.

Monday through Friday there will be two performances — one at 7 p.m. and one at 9 p.m. On Saturday there will be one show only at 8:30 p.m.

In addition to the top name entertainers, enjoy amusement rides, livestock shows and exhibits, contests, and other sights and sounds of the great Schuylkill County Fair for just $7 per person.

This year there are three family oriented shows three times each day starting at 12:30 with Wagstaff, a ventriloquist featured on America's Funniest Home Videos, Bwana Jim's Reptile Show and The New Dawn Singers thanks to a combination of sponsors including M & T Bank, Leesport Bank, Fidler Brothers Construction, Seltzer Insurance Agency, Red Lion Cafe, and Schuylkill Economic Development Corporation.

The New Dawn Singers hail from Florida and have toured throughout the U.S., Canada, Mexico, Jamaica, into the Bahamas. They bring a Broadway style show full of high energy song and dance, and a great message woven throughout the show that America lives on and so does her people.

Also, see Randy Boni, professional chainsaw carver, Tuesday through Friday thanks to sponsors Koch's Lawn and Garden, Reynold Miller Sawmill, and Pioneer Seamless Gutters.

Plus, tour the farm museum and hands-on nature center, sportsmen's exhibit, see livestock, poultry and other exhibits, antique tractors and gas engines, and more as part of the daily admission. The fair's first ever Antique Tractor Pull will be conducted Saturday also. Plenty of free parking and modern rest rooms are available.

The Schuylkill County Fair is nestled in the beautiful Appalachian Mountains, just 40 minutes from Harrisburg or Allentown. For more information about the Schuylkill County Fair visit their Website at www.schuylkillfair.com or call (570) 754-FAIR.

Fair Commissions Feather Artist Painting

The Schuylkill County Fair unveiled their 20th Anniversary commemorative print at a press conference at Schaeffer's Harley Davidson/Buell yesterday. The painting depicts "Mountains of Memories" of past Schuylkill County fair scenes highlighting the youth and livestock features of the fair. The original painting will be sold to the highest bidder before the youth livestock auction on Thursday, July 31 during the Schuylkill County Fair.

The painting is unique in that it is painted on a grouse tail. Allen E. Crothamel, a nature and wildlife artist from Lake Ariel, Pennsylvania paints on the unusual medium of tail feathers of grouse and turkey and was commissioned to paint the fair scene.

Allen has painted over 160 original paintings and works with many wildlife organization fundraisers across the country, including Rocky Mt. Elk Foundation, Ducks Unlimited, National Wild Turkey Federation, Ruffed Grouse Society, Whitetail Deer Association, Fur Trappers Association, The Audubon Society, Trout Unlimited, and Pheasants Forever.

The artist has appeared on several television shows airing nationally and locally. Pen and ink illustrations have been published by magazine and book authors. Feather prints are available for purchase in stores and art galleries around the world.

Allen was commissioned for a painting sent to the Australian Summer Olympics, has sent paintings to many other parts of the world, and has been selected for numerous awards in the art world, including the Eastman Kodak award for innovative art printing. Recently the artist's work was featured in the Fox Ridge Outfitters worldwide catalogue.

A limited edition of 500 20th anniversary prints will be offered for sale and can be purchased for $25 at the Conservation District office in the Ag Center located on the Gordon Nagle Trail. The fair will commission two additional prints with next years print featuring the 10th Anniversary of the Schuylkill County Agriculture Museum painted on turkey feathers. The scene will feature a tractor and a team of draft horses in a pull-off with the Ag Museum in the background.

For more information about the Schuylkill County Fair, call (570) 622-3742, ext. 112 or visit the fair Website at www.schuylkillfair.com.

History Of Fairs

Editor's Note: This excerpt on the history of fairs was taken from the "1998 Fair Management Reference," an IAFE publication containing 13 chapters covering all facets of fair management. The reference was compiled and edited by Mike Heffron, retired manager of the Minnesota State Fair.

The history of fairs is clouded and the record is less than complete. Nonetheless, the story of mankind is replete with references to fairs, not in an institutional context, but as a part of everyday social intercourse.

A casual observer might conclude that American fairs and exhibitions came fresh out of eighteenth century western Europe, delivered to the colonial docks of Boston and Halifax with a predisposed mission to serve agriculture and animal husbandry.

This observation fits with our collective sense of tradition, but fails to recognize centuries of historical linkage to the eastern Mediterranean before the birth of Christ. Old and New Testament references to fairs are mixed with allusions to commerce, trade, the marketplace, festivals, religious feasts, and holy days.

Where and when the first fair was conducted is not known, however, evidence points to the existence of fairs as early as 500 BC Scripture records in the book of Ezekiel: "Tarshish was thy merchant by reason of the multitude of the kinds of riches with silver, iron, tin, and lead, they traded in thy fairs." Ezekiel's account of the destruction of Tyre, supposedly written about 588 BC, describes Tyre as an important market and fair center.

Fairs were commercial in character from the beginning. Merchants from distant countries would come together, bringing native wares to trade with one another, and even though it is not clearly explained in Ezekiel or in other biblical references, it is reasonable to assume that "fair" was the name given to the place at which early trading between foreign merchants was conducted.

It is equally clear that religious activity was companion to the commerce. The Latin world "feria" meaning holy day, would appear the logical root of the word "fair." Each feria was a day when large numbers of people would assemble for worship. Worship in those early days was centered around temples in great cities, including Ninevah, Athens, Rome, and Mecca. These cities were also respected as the great commercial centers of the world. Fields adjacent to these temples were staked out for traders. Religious figures were placed about the fields in order to protect the traders and merchants.

During the early Christian era, the church took an active part in sponsoring fairs on feast days, and as a result, fairs came to be a source of revenue for the church. Possibly, our modern church bazaars possess some rudiments of these religious fairs.

This evolution which blended religion and commerce continued over time and moved into western Europe. Periodic gatherings brought together the producers of all types of commodities for the purpose of barter, exchange and, finally, outright sale. To this marketplace were added entertainment and other forms of activity thus, these primitive markets took on the aspect of fairs as we know them today.

In 1765, less than 300 years after Columbus finished his work in the New World, the first American fair was presented in Windsor, Nova Scotia. The same fair continues to operate today. In upper Canada, as Ontario was known in early Confederation, a fair was conducted in 1792, sponsored by the Niagara Agricultural Society. As with Windsor, the Niagara Fair remains in operation today. In addition, many small fairs were conducted during the early 1700's in French Canada while under French rule.

Meanwhile, Elkanah Watson, a New England patriot and farmer, earned the title, "Father of U.S. agricultural fairs" by producing (the first) a small exhibit of sheep under an old elm tree in the town of Pittsfield, Massachusetts. The year was 1807. He believed that the fine textured fleece of the exhibited sheep, when manufactured into cloth, would successfully compete with the best wool imported from England. He wrote, "Many farmers, and even women, were excited by curiosity to attend this first novel and humble exhibition."

In 1810 Watson staged a larger and more ambitious project, a Berkshire cattle show. The event was successful beyond all his expectations; entries included 386 sheep, 109 oxen, 9 cows, 7 folds, 3 heifers, 2 calves, and 1 boar.

Early American fairs in both Canada and the U.S. shifted quietly, but decisively away from the European festival model into the systematic development of agriculture and animal husbandry while offering education, local resource and local industry promotion, and entertainment. Competition became the cornerstone of fair programming; youth development provided a social theme.

The 19th century closed with almost every state and province having one or more agricultural fair or exhibition.

Today, more than 3,200 fairs are conducted in North America each year. They provide industrial exhibits, demonstrations, and competition aimed at the advancement of livestock, horticulture, and agriculture with special emphasis placed on educational activitites such as 4-H, FFA, and similar youth development programs. While enjoying these high-minded pursuits, fair visitors are also able to see, hear, touch, smell, and taste the richness and variety of what the world has to offer.

Wet Weather May Spell Disease Troubles For Wheat

WOOSTER, Ohio — Ohio's wheat is performing well despite recent rains, but saturated soils may have created favorable conditions for disease development.

Pat Lipps, an Ohio State University plant pathologist with the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center, said that diseases like powdery mildew, Stagonospora leaf blotch and Fusarium head scab may become a problem if moist conditions continue.

"The wheat looks like it's in really good condition and I don't think that the recent wet weather has caused any major problems with growth and development," said Lipps, a professor with OARDC's Department of Plant Pathology. "But there are some side effects from the wet conditions that we are concerned about."

One concern is the development of head scab or Fusarium head scab, a fungal disease that can have a devastating impact on wheat production and yields if it develops during the crop's flowering stage.

Another disease that may develop due to wet, cool conditions is Stagonospora leaf and glume blotch, a disease that can cause infections if spores are splashed onto the plant.

"Stagonospora lives on old residues on the lower leaves of plants. Because of the rain, spores could have splashed onto the upper leaves of the wheat crop and may cause leaf infections," said Lipps. "Growers should be scouting their fields right now for the development of lesions, a sign that the disease is present."

Powdery mildew is currently showing up on susceptible wheat varieties, said Lipps. "Anybody growing susceptible varieties needs to pay attention to that and apply fungicides if the upper leaves are showing disease. They should be scouting their fields at heading or before heading occurs."

Farmers CopingWith Late May Corn Crops

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Although Pennsylvania farmers got a good start on corn planting this spring (more than 40 percent complete by mid-May), recent rainy weather likely will cause planting to fall behind average, says a corn management specialist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

Gregory Roth, associate professor of agronomy, advises farmers not to panic, but to follow a few simple tips in approaching later plantings this year.

"Yield losses are not that great due to later planting," Roth says. "In fact, sometimes when planting has been completed quickly in recent years, we've had low yields, so farmers should wait until soil conditions are right.

Weather patterns should grow more summer-like as the jet stream begins its retreat during the next few weeks.

"The state climatologist is predicting chilly conditions for the second half of May, followed by a significant warming trend and ending with another cool spell. Rainfall will taper off in the coming week, with a period of showers expected May 21 and 22, more projected for May 26 and 27 and again at the very end of the month. .

Rainfall should be above normal in most places, and it's better to wait for things to dry out. We always regret planting in a wet seedbed."

When soils finally dry out after wet-weather planting, Roth says, furrow sidewall compaction can hamper corn growth. So farmers shouldn't panic and begin planting in inappropriate conditions.

Other tips for dealing with the wet weather include:

• Don't delay planting due to tillage or spreading fertilizer. Consider no-till planting and sidedressing of fertilizer.

• Don't be concerned about switching to shorter-season hybrids, at least until the last week of May — unless you had selected some very full-season hybrids for your area.

• Consider using Bt hybrids. Recent research has shown corn planted later in May often encounters more second-generation corn borer damage and has a more consistent yield response to Bt than earlier planted corn.

• Reconsider the use of starter fertilizer on later planted corn. Starter benefits are generally small on many manured soils and they decline as planting is delayed.

• Plant the seed 1.5 to 2 inches deep. Shallow corn planting is more risky later in the season when conditions in the seed zone can quickly change to hot, dry and cloddy.

Virginia BCIA Central Bull Test Station Summary

CULPEPER, Va. — For the 45th consecutive year, bulls were developed, evaluated, and sold through the Virginia Central Bull Test Station Program operated by the Virginia Beef Cattle Improvement Association.

In the 2002-03 test and sale year, a total of 402 bulls were tested at two test stations located in Culpeper and Wytheville. The 256 bulls which sold represented the top two-thirds of all bull tested.

This was the 45th year for the Culpeper test station, operated by Glenmary Farm, Tom and Kim Nixon owners, of Rapidan, Virginia. In the fall-born senior group at Culpeper, 105 bulls were tested and had a test ADG of 3.37 and an adjusted yearling weight of 1,116. The 87 spring-born Culpeper junior bulls recorded test performance of 3.67 ADG and 1,112 adjusted yearling weight.

The test station at Wytheville completed its 24th year, and is owned and operated by Danny Umberger. Of the 210 total bulls tested at Wytheville, 91 were fall-born senior bulls and 119 spring-born juniors. Senior bulls at Wytheville had a test ADG of 3.39 and adjusted yearling weight of 1,102, while the junior bulls posted a 3.29 ADG and 1,156 adjusted yearling weight.

Across the two stations and four test groups ranging in length from 112 to 133 days, the 402 total bulls averaged 3.42 ADG and 1,124 adjusted yearling weight. These 402 bulls included 331 Angus, 42 Simmental, 17 Charolais, and 12 Gelbvieh.

In the three sales conducted, the 256 bulls grossed $397,975 to average $1,555. The 62 Culpeper Senior bulls averaged $1,734, 53 Culpeper Junior bulls $1,517, and 141 Wytheville Senior and Junior bulls $1,490.

Across all three sales, 210 Angus averaged $1,573, 27 Simmental averaged $1,490, 11 Charolais averaged $1,668, and 8 Gelbvieh averaged $1,631.

Average total test and sale costs for bulls sold during the 2002-03 season was $665, for an average return of $890 to the consignor per bull sold.

The $1,555 average sale price per bull for 2002-03 across all tests and sales compares to averages of $1,723 in 2001-01, $1,931 in 2000-01, $1,530 in 1999-2000, and $1,697 in 1998-99 for the Virginia BCIA test station bull sales.

Annual fluctuations in bull prices are the result of several factors. Analysis of BCIA bull test station data reveals a very strong association between feeder calf prices and bull sale prices across years. From 1998 to 2001, feeder calf prices rose steadily as did prices paid for bulls. Since 2001, bull sale prices have declined as have feeder calf prices. These trends are consistent across all tests and sales for the past 10 years. While bull sale prices have fluctuated in recent years, average test and sale costs have remained relatively constant.

The average total test and sale cost of $665 for 2002-03 compares favorably to average total costs of $659 in 2001-01, $710 in 2000-01, $645 in 1999-2000, and $626 in 1998-99. Therefore, net returns to consignors per bull sold have primarily been a function of differences in sale price and not test costs across years.

Average net return per bull sold over the last five years have been $890 in 2002-03, $1,064 in 2001-01, $1,221 in 2000-01, $885 in 1999-2000, and $1,071 in 1998-99.

A total of 90 breeders participated in the Central Bull Test Station program last year. There were 75 Virginia breeders, and a total of 15 from the surrounding states of Tennessee (7), West Virginia (3), North Carolina (2), Maryland (2), and Kentucky (1). Several breeders participated in more than one test and sale. Of the 256 bulls sold, 226 were purchased by Virginia buyers and 30 (11.9 percent) sold out of state.

All bulls tested and sold were consigned by breeders who are members of the Virginia Beef Cattle Improvement Association. For information concerning the Central Bull Test Station program for 2003-04 contact the Virginia BCIA office at (540) 231-9163 or visit http://bcia.apsc.vt.edu.

Penn-Mar Ethanol Picks Plant Site

BAINBRIDGE (Lancaster Co.) — Planners of a new ethanol facility in southcentral Pennsylvania recently reached a purchase agreement for a 65 acre site adjacent to Lancaster County's solid waste incinerator in the western part of the county along the Susquehanna River..

The Lancaster County Solid Waste Authority approved a $25,000 purchase option with Penn-Mar Ethanol, giving the company a year to purchase the property for $2.7 million.

Penn-Mar hopes to break ground early next year for an $80 million facility that would convert corn into about 50 million gallons of ethanol per year.

The Conoy Township site was chosen after consideration of several locations in Adams, Lancaster, and York counties.

The site's proximity to Norfolk Southern Rail lines would allow corn from the Midwest to be delivered to the facility by train.

Penn-Mar Ethanol includes about 50 farmer and agribusiness investors from Pennsylvania and Maryland.

Whether the plant gets built may hinge on whether Conoy Township supervisors rezone the farmland along the Susquehanna River to accommodate the project.

The chairman of the supervisors, Stephen Mohr, has indicated that the township was agreeable. But Mohr said he first wanted to spend a day at an existing ethanol plant and talk candidly to workers and neighbors.

James Warner, executive director of the waste authority, said a trip to a new Madison, Wis., ethanol plant is being arranged for late June.

Mohr said he has fielded no concerns about the project from residents and has gotten encouraging comments from several local farmers and farm-business officials.

"If this ethanol plant proves to have the same type of community response and awareness, and is as community-friendly as the incinerator, there will be no problems," Mohr said.

Scott Welsh, Penn-Mar project manager, said the company would be submitting land-use applications to Conoy Township within days and would begin detailed analysis of the site to make sure it is suitable.

The company would like to break ground in early 2004. Construction would take 12-15 months, Welsh said.

The authority's Warner emphasized this morning that the ultimate say on whether the project becomes a reality is a "local land-use issue" that rests with Conoy supervisors.

Water and electricity generated at the incinerator could be sold to the ethanol plant, Warner said.

The ethanol plant would use local and shipped-in corn from the Midwest to produce ethanol, which is in growing demand as a gasoline additive. The distillation process also would produce carbon dioxide that could be sold to bottling companies and leftover high-quality grain that could be marketed as a premium feed for livestock.

The Penn-Mar facility would produce 50 million gallons of ethanol a year for eastern markets.

Ethanol production has become a boon for strapped corn producers and is now the third-largest use of corn in the U.S.

Once built, the plant would need 30 to 35 workers to operate it.

The complex would have about 20 acres of buildings. The grain storage tanks and elevator would be the tallest structures, at 150 to 175 feet.

The agreement gives the authority the option of re-purchasing the property if an ethanol plant is not built. The authority also could refuse to sell the property if it is determined that air emissions from the ethanol plant would preclude the authority — under state and federal pollution limits — from expanding the incinerator some day.

Warner stressed that he did not think the plant's emissions would impact the incinerator.

Pork Checkoff To Showcase Activities At World Pork Expo

DES MOINES, Iowa — The Pork Checkoff will showcase activities at World Pork Expo, scheduled June 5-7 at the Iowa State Fairgrounds in Des Moines.

"Pork producers will want to visit the Pork Checkoff Showcase to learn more about programs funded through the Pork Checkoff, sample free food, and register for prizes," said Hugh Dorminy, a pork producer from Russellville, Ark., president of the National Pork Board.

Every 45 minutes, pork producers can enter the Pork Checkoff's air-conditioned theater, where they can view a video of the Pork Checkoff in action on the big screen, then proceed to the open-air Checkoff Cafe where they can sample pork provided by a co-marketing partner in foodservice promotions. USDA Revises Bioenergy Program

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman recently announced key revisions to the Bioenergy Program to expand industrial consumption of agricultural commodities by promoting their use in the production of ethanol and biodiesel.

Veneman also announced that sign-up for the program was scheduled to begin May 7 and end June 6. Output of both products beginning Oct. 1, 2002 will be eligible for payments this fiscal year.

Under the program, the secretary of agriculture makes payments through the Commodity Credit Corporation to eligible producers to encourage increased purchases of eligible commodities (energy feedstocks) for the purpose of expanding production of bioenergy and supporting new production capacity. Payments to eligible producers are based on the increase in quantity of bioenergy they produce during a fiscal year over the quantity they produced during the preceding fiscal year.

Producers wishing to enroll in the program should obtain a Bioenergy Program Agreement, Form CCC 850, (Agreement), a Bioenergy Program Annual Production Information Form CCC-850 Supplement, and related instructions from either the Kansas City Commodity Office, Contract Reconciliation Division, P.O. Box 419205, STOP 8758, Kansas City, MO 64141 6205, telephone (816) 926-6525; or via the Internet at www.fsa.usda.gov/daco/. A Bigger Problem Than The Rainy Weather

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — For farmer Paul B. Zimmerman, getting into the fields between rain showers is the least of his worries this spring.

East Cocalico Township began drilling a municipal test well Tuesday on Zimmerman's farm near Ephrata. The sign pictured in the foreground portrays local response to the drilling.

Zimmerman, along with his attorney Paula Leicht and Pennsylvania Farm Bureau's Counsel of Government Affairs, John Bell, say the township's eminent domain action is illegal because the farm is located in an Ag Security Area comprised of 500 acres within the township.

Zimmerman and his son Paul Jr. grow corn and alfalfa on about 50 acres of prime limestone cropland on the farm and manage a herd of 65 high-type Holsteins. They recently harvested the first cutting of alfalfa on part of the field adjacent to where the drilling rig is set up.

If the well proves successful, the Zimmerman's would be required to cease normal production on 10-12 acres of land surrounding the wellhead. According to Zimmerman, that "would just demolish the value of the farm."

June Dairy Month Kicks Off With Sundae Celebration

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — Pennsylvania's dairy promotion organizations will kick off June Dairy Month with the creation of a colossal ice cream sundae on the steps of the Capitol Building in Harrisburg on June 3.

The public is invited to join the celebration as the dairy industry marks the 66th anniversary of honoring our nation's hard-working dairy farmers. Dairy is the largest segment of Pennsylvania's agriculture industry, generating an estimated $1.79 billion in economic activity.

"By celebrating June Dairy Month, we are giving Pennsylvanians the opportunity to thank the commonwealth's nearly 9,300 dairy farmers who work diligently year-round to provide consumers with a fresh supply of milk and quality dairy products," said Logan Bower, Perry County dairy farmer and dairy farmer spokesperson for Mid-Atlantic Dairy Association.

Joining Mid-Atlantic Dairy Association in the celebration are America Dairy Association and Dairy Council Mid East and the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program. Consumers and dairy farmers alike are invited to join the festivities on the Capitol steps from noon until 1 p.m.

To kick off the celebration, local dignitaries including Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Dennis C. Wolff, Pennsylvania State Dairy Princess Raechel Kilgore, and Logan Bower will say a few words before the creation of the colossal sundae.

Following the opening remarks, several county dairy princesses will join dairy promotion staff to create a giant sundae using 90 gallons of Turkey Hill Dairy vanilla ice cream. The sundae will be covered with six gallons of chocolate fudge, six gallons of strawberries and 30 pounds of chopped pecans, all donated by Turkey Hill Dairy of Lancaster. The sundae will be topped off with real whipped cream and a giant 12-inch ball of cherries.

According to Bower, this event reinforces the common goals shared by farmers and milk processors.

"We are working together to bolster dairy's image and build its future," he said. "This event is among the dairy promotion checkoff programs that are working to increase demand for dairy products."

American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Mid East, Mid-Atlantic Dairy Association and Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program are the local planning and management organizations funded by dairy farmer checkoff dollars. They work closely with Dairy Management Inc. and are responsible for increasing demand for U.S. produced dairy products on behalf of Pennsylvania's dairy farmers.

Our Dairy Plus Special Technology issue on June 28 focuses on ways producers can use the latest technology to aid them in improving efficiency and expanding the bottom line. Included are reports on a freestall sand separator, robotic milking, and other new items. Also included are a stray voltage update, veterinary reports, cooperative and dairy business news, and a calendar of events.

Holstein Judging School July 8-9

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The 2003 Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Judging School is fast approaching. Registration deadline is June 30.

The school is scheduled Tuesday, July 8-Wednesday, July 9, noon, at the Tioga County Holstein Club. Teacher is David Trotter, Enon Valley.

The school will be visiting two outstanding herds of cattle. Gor-Wood-D Holsteins and Moyer's Jerseys both have done well in the show ring while emphasizing outstanding production to go along with the type they have each developed. This will be an opportunity to work with two of the top herds in their respective breeds.

All youth regardless of breed orientation who are interested in learning about dairy cattle evaluation and reason giving are invited and encouraged to attend. The school offers at least 10 classes of animals to judge.

Cost of the school is $30 for those staying overnight. This includes school costs, hotel room, and evening meal. For those that commute, cost is $20, which covers school cost and the evening meal. This year, a second member of the same family who attends will receive a $5 discount off their registration fee.

For more information, contact the Pennsylvania Holstein Association, 839 Benner Pike, State College, PA 16801, Phone (814) 234-0364, www.paholsteins.com.

Farm Bureau Supports Dairy Herd Buyout Program

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — Pennsylvania Farm Bureau (PFB) has announced support for the Cooperatives Working Together (CWT) program aimed at raising milk prices paid to dairymen. The general farm organization's board of directors adopted the position after hearing recommendations from PFB's dairy committee and several county Farm Bureaus.

Proposed by the National Milk Producers Federation (NMPF), the CWT program would use a producer assessment of 17.9 cents per hundredweight of milk for herd buyouts, export incentives and other targeted reductions in milk supplies. The program is expected to increase milk prices by an average of about $1.30 per hundredweight of milk if producers of at least 80 percent of the nation's milk supply are enrolled. NMPF officials have said the program won't be implemented unless the 80 percent level is achieved.

"With 70 percent of the nation's milk supply already committed to the program by participating cooperatives, independent dairy producers now hold the key to whether the program will move forward," said PFB Dairy Specialist Joel Rotz. "At least ten percent more of the milk supply has to be committed by independent dairy farmers during June before the program will be implemented, and Farm Bureau encourages their participation."

"To their credit, dairy farmers are working together to create a self-help program that doesn't rely on the government," said Pennsylvania Farm Bureau President Guy F. Donaldson. "It requires some initial investment by dairy farmers, but a good outcome will help reverse the worst economic situation for dairy farmers in twenty five years. The 80 percent participation threshold increases the chances for success.

Farm Bureau also weighed the potential impact on the beef industry before deciding to support the CWT effort. "The herd buyout will total approximately 125,000 cows nationwide, which is only three-tenths of one percent of the national beef slaughter market. The impact on beef prices should be insignificant," Rotz said. "Because most of the buyouts will be in the western states, the impact in Pennsylvania will be even less."

For more information, dairy producers can call the CWT Hotline at (888) 858-7813 or visit NMPF's Website at www.nmpf.com.

Farm Service Agency Accepts Reports

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Lancaster County Farm Service Agency (FSA) is accepting 2003 crop acreage reports. The deadlines, for reporting free of charge, are June 16 for small grains and July 15 for corn, soybeans, and all other crops.

Reports can still be accepted after these dates by paying a late fee of $35 per farm with an additional nominal charge for acreage.

Crop reporting is a requirement for those farms enrolled in the Direct-Countercyclical Payment program (DCP), Loan Deficiency Payments (LDPs), and many other programs. FSA expects a heavy reporting season, so come prepared to know the location of your crops on the aerial maps or prepare your own map with the crop locations and acreages totaled. Aerial photos are available ahead of time, and also on the Mapquest Website, www.mapquest.com. This will save time at the county office.

The Lancaster County FSA office address is The Farm and Home Center, 1383 Arcadia Rd., Lancaster, PA 17601, (717) 397-6235.

Lancaster County Weekly Cattle

New Holland, Pa.
Report Supplied By USDA
Friday, May 30, 2003

	CATTLE	CALVES
THIS WEEK	1922	1083
LAST WEEK	2510	1306
LAST YEAR	2212	1370

Compared to last week, slaughter steers sold up to 1.00 lower on Monday as the bulk of the cattle were weighing up full, and the quality of the run was below average. When Tuesday and Thursday are combined prices were fully .50-4 00 higher, mostly 2.00-4.00 higher. Bidding was very active on Tuesday, with buyers extremely aggressive on Thursday as the run was around 200-300 head lighter than normal; and with the demand outweighing the supply prices on high Choice and Prime steers topped 89.00. The 89.00 paid for a small group on Thursday was a record for the county, although the more important note is to point out the prices being paid for the majority of the Choice steers, which was mostly 83.30-85.50 on Thursday. Nationally, boxed beef cutout values were several dollars higher again this week, with light Choice ending up at 148.67 on Thursday. The direct feedyards moved their live steers 1.00-2.00 higher from 80.00-81.00, and 3.00 higher in the meat from 127.00-130.00. Futures at the Mercantile Exchange still hold a noticeable discount to the cash trade, especially when the May contract expires in a couple of days. Slaughter Holstein steers were scarce early in the week, with late week prices 2.00-3.00 higher. Slaughter heifers sold steady to 3.00 higher for the week. Slaughter cows sold steady to 1.00 lower on Tuesday, with fleshy cows fully 2.00-3.00 higher on Thursday, and with Lean cows steady to 1.50 higher. Demand and buyer attendance were both very good late in the week as a few Premium White cows sold over 60.00. Slaughter bulls were scarce on Tuesday, with a fancy Thursday run trading with a higher undertone. The reported supply this week included 704 head of steers, 104 heifers, 798 cows, 64 bulls, with 222 head of feeder cattle. Note: Weekly receipts do not include Monday as the sale was not covered due to the Memorial Day holiday.

Calf Summary: Compared to last week, veal calves sold steady to firm. Holstein bull calves suitable for special-fed veal barns sold sharply higher for the week due to good buyer demand. Finished calves are pushing into the 200.00 range again as veal plants offer more money to U.S. producers as the Canadian border remains closed. Holstein heifers sold sharply higher on Tuesday as prices were as high as 480.00, however, on Thursday prices trended lower as bids did not top 380.00. This week the PA Department of Agriculture graded 726 head of calves in Lancaster County.

Steers Sell At Record $89 CWT

MILLIE BUNTING
Market Staff

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — There was quite an air of excitement at the New Holland Sales Stables cattle auction Thursday when very active bidding for High Choice and Prime steers went to $89 per hundredweight.

Three head weighing about 1,365 pounds sold individually at $89 and one small lot of black steers in the same weight range sold at $88.75.

They were purchased for a kosher kill packer.

Thursdays prices broke the record of $88.50 which was set Tuesday at the Vintage auction surpassing the record $88.25 set there Monday, May 19.

Taylor Cox, the USDA market reporter, said the quality of the run was very good with the majority of the offerings consisting of Choice and Prime cattle.

He said the sale atmosphere was something to see as the farmers watched the bids going higher and higher to reach an almost unbelievable price.

What was probably even more remarkable, the market reporter noted, was that the most of the Choice steers sold from $82 to $86. The average selling price of the Choice steers was $84.50, which was also a sale record in the county.

Combined with the Vintage auction, Choice slaughter steers sold for a weekly average of $83.25 10 cents per hundredweight higher than the $83.15 record set in December 1990.

All the factors which support a market — excellent demand for beef, reduced supplies of Choice cattle in the midwestern feedlots, advancing CME futures prices — have come together to produce these record prices.

Plus, the closing of the Canadian border has added an unforeseen positive influence on the current market.

Basically, though, it has to be the exceptional demand for beef that continues at record-breaking prices. Carcass cutout values based on prices of fabricated beef cuts, Thursday, advanced more than $2.

The Choice 600-750 pound carcass cutout value was reported at $147.83 $5.19 higher compared to last Friday's; and the Choice 750-900 pound cutout value was set at $147.94 up $4.16 from last Friday's.

The record prices in the Lancaster County are probably also a record in the entire U.S. In the midwestern feedlots, trading was reported active Wednesday at $1 to $2 higher prices with high Select to mostly Choice steers rating $80-81 live and $126-130 dressed basis.

Vegetable Growers Favor Program Continuation

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Secretary of Agriculture Dennis C Wolff announced that Pennsylvania's vegetable growers voted to continue the state's Vegetable Marketing and Research Program for another five years during a review referendum in March. Voters displayed a strong vote of confidence, favoring the program's continuation by more than a 3-to-1 margin.

"This outcome is a very positive endorsement of the Commonwealth's Vegetable Marketing and Research Program," Wolff said. "The Department of Agriculture wishes to congratulate the program members and is proud to continue its support of the group's strategic efforts to fund research as well as to promote the high-quality produce that is grown so abundantly here in the state."

An impartial teller committee met to count the ballots on April 10, 2003. Of 1,426 ballots mailed to program participants, 533 were returned and deemed eligible to be counted. Thirty additional ballots were returned but were considered invalid because they were unsigned, illegible or postmarked after the formal voting deadline. Of the 533 eligible votes, 418, or 78.4 percent, favored a continuation of the program. A simple majority was required to vote in favor of the program in order for it to continue another five years.

The Pennsylvania Vegetable Marketing and Research Program was founded in 1988 under terms of the state's Agricultural Commodities Marketing Act, also known as ACMA. The Act requires the growers to approve the continuation of the program every five years. In 1993, 60 percent of the growers voted to continue the program while in 1998 the percentage of "Yes" votes increased to 66 percent. This year, 78 percent of those voting cast ballots favoring continuation of the program.

More than 1,400 growers participate and benefit from the program's research and marketing activities designed to support Pennsylvania-grown vegetables.

For more information about the Vegetable Marketing Referendum, contact Kyle Nagurny at (717) 787-2376.

"I purchased my 62'x14' Slurrystore in 1980. It was sized to give me six months storage for 80 cows. Over the years my sons became part of the business and our herd grew to 180 cows. Expanding the Slurrystore to 28' high 23 years later gives us nearly the same length of storage we had with 80 cows.

"When we haul manure, we can fill our 3,800-gal. tanker in a minute and a half. This Side-mounted Pump really works. Our updated pumping system agitates so much manure that it really makes our tractor smoke. It never did that before! It is a superior agitation system."

Highlight Year Unrolls For Pennsylvania's Dairy Princess

JOYCE BUPP
York County Correspondent

AIRVILLE (York Co.) — Difficult as it is to imagine, Pennsylvania state dairy princess Raechel Kilgore was not even sure she wanted to compete for a county dairy princess position a year ago.

"Dairy judging was my priority last year," said Raechel of her initial reluctance to try for the York County crown. During an intense several months before that, Raechel wrapped up an extremely successful series of dairy judging wins with a first-place finish at the national competition, during the October 2001 World Dairy Expo.

While Raechel and her older sister Rebecca shared many interests, she nevertheless felt a little uncertainty about following "Becky's" footsteps, as she had in many previous activities. Becky had been a county and state alternate princess a few years earlier.

"So it was coming down to the wire last year for filling out the application, and I still hadn't decided," Raechel said. She was encouraged by family and many industry friends to run for the position and, at almost the last moment, signed and submitted the dairy princess form. That last-minute decision propelled her to wear the sparkling tiara at the finale of the state princess contest in Harrisburg in September.

"Becky was really happy for me," said Raechel of Becky's enthusiastic support for her. Becky is completing her degree as a chemical engineer at Rose-Hulman Institute of Technology.

"The whole year has been a highlight," Raechel said. She was unable to pinpoint a favorite from multiple appearances during a whirlwind schedule that has taken her to several surrounding states and dozens of in-state events representing the dairy industry. Learning how neighboring states operate their princess and promotion programs has been especially interesting to Raechel, since program size and requirements have a varying range.

The Kilgore family has always been active in agriculture and agriculture activities, and is especially supportive of youth programs. With state dairy princess Raechel are her brother, Christopher, and sister, Rebecca, and parents Doug and Pam.

Despite her busy schedule, Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Raechel Kilgore still pitches in to help at the barn when she is home. One of Raechel's jobs is looking after the 4-H and FFA show animals.

"But we all promote dairy, regardless of how the programs operate," she said.

Raechel, Rebecca, and brother, Christopher, are the children of Pam and Doug Kilgore. The Kilgore's McCalls Ferry farm, near Airville, has been in the family for a couple of generations, milking cows and farming crops on land high above the western cliffs of the Susquehanna River, in southeastern York County. The Kilgore family has a long history of participation in industry and community leadership activities. Doug is a primary election candidate for York County commissioner.

Typical of dairy farm youngsters, Raechel began helping with chores, such as feeding calves, at a young age. Tending to 4-H show animals became another responsibility she assumed as she grew old enough to join the program and exhibit project calves.

When she was eight, Rachael got her first opportunity to work with dairy promotion, as one of the county's "little dairy miss" participants. Junior members of the county's dairy promotion team often help at major events and activities. Parade appearances to promote milk and helping with the annual Ice Cream Day at the Courthouse promotion left a significant mark on her memories as a little girl.

During Becky's dairy princess reign, Raechel became much more familiar with the promotion activities and commitment required by dairy princesses. She helped Becky compile her scrapbook for the state competition and often did the chores for both of them, such as looking after show calves, when appearances took Becky away from the farm.

"Her involvement really helped me to see what the program was all about," Raechel said. With that boost of enthusiasm for promotion, she served in 2001-02 as a county dairy ambassador.

Fulfilling both her state and county princess responsibilities concurrently has kept Raechel's schedule crammed with events. School promotions, including "library readings," have been especially intense the last few weeks in the county, while state appearances kept her away many days throughout the fall and winter months.

"When I'm not busy with state functions, we do the county activities. I have missed about one-third of my school year," said Raechel, who works hard to keep her schoolwork a priority despite her other commitments. She is on Red Lion's distinguished honor roll, member of the school's National Honor Society chapter, and an Elite Eighteen student. She is a member of Red Lion FFA and has won numerous honors representing the chapter at dairy judging and public speaking events.

Raechel's ability to so ably maintain her scholastic achievements while fulfilling her dairy princess responsibilities has not been lost on her Red Lion Area senior-class peers. In early May, they elected her queen of their senior class prom.

Raechel's 4-H career has been equally accomplished, capped with her earning national high individual dairy judging honors in 2001. She was named outstanding county 4-H'er in 2001 and represented Pennsylvania at both the National 4-H Congress and the National 4-H Dairy Conference in 2002. Having achieved the national judging title, Raechel now shares her skills in teaching, and helping to coach the county dairy judging team.

While her county appearances will end with the crowning of her successor, Raechel still has numerous state functions to attend throughout the summer months. Attending many of them with her will be the two alternate state princesses, Rachel Ebert from Westmoreland County and Ashley Chapman, Erie County.

"They've become like sisters to me," said Raechel of Rachel and Ashley. "We have traveled together alot and gotten very close." In fact, soon after her prom queen crowning, Raechel called these two close friends who had insisted she let them know immediately the outcome of the prom court selection.

Even while Raechel's state reign is winding down through its last few months, she is preparing for her next major life step, college. Raechel plans to major in animal science, and possibly minor in ag communications. Making her final choice has been difficult, with Penn State and Cornell in the final running.

Though she spent many days since September living out of suitcases and sleeping in hotels, Raechel still pitches in with farm chores on those rare days when she does get to spend a little time at home. There are her six show animals to care for, calf feeding, and helping to milk the Kilgore's 40 cows.

In a message included in the recent newsletter to York County dairy farmers from the promotion committee, Raechel summed up her whirlwind county reign coming to a close.

"My time as the York County Dairy Princess and the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess has been one of the best years of my life," she wrote. "Although I have been extremely busy, basically being a part-time high school student on the side, the experiences that I have had are unforgettable. I have enjoyed attending various events throughout the county, all to represent our local dairy industry. I am especially grateful for all of the support that I have had over the past few months. The committee, my junior representatives, and all of the supporters of the dairy industry have helped to encourage me through these busy times. It is hard to imagine that my county title will go on to another deserving young lady. I doubt that I will ever forget my role as a promoter of the dairy industry."

Fulfilling her state dairy princess role has resulted in Raechel Kilgore's being a "parttime" student this school year. She has still managed to remain scholastically near the top of her Red Lion Area High School class and was recently elected senior prom queen by her peers.

On Being a Farm Wife

(and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

What a ripoff.

Some days, around here, that's all this farming profession seems to be.

If you don't believe that, come lend me a hand tackling the mountain of ripped-up farming garb and gear piled up at the sewing machine. The mending piles up, like the junk recently tackled in the attic, because on a scale of jobs to do, it's somewhere out there at about 9 on a scale of one to ten.

That's because a myriad of ripoff instigators lie stealthily in wait, threatening to attack at every step The Farmer takes around here. Result is that practically every laundry load of scruffy work clothes turns up more fodder for the ripped-off pile.

Mending jeans is a challenge because there is just no easy way to patch a ragged hole way down in the knee of a narrow, heavy-fabric, pant leg. A patch must be cut, temporarily pinned fast and then the pantleg wiggled and worked onto the sewing machine where the needle can access it. Or, the entire side seam must be ripped open. allowing better maneuverability, but necessitating additional ripoff as part of the job. A new sewing machine purchased a couple of years ago eases the task a little bit, because of its design, but patching pants is still grunt work.

It's also a painful endeavor. In the ripoff repair process, I inevitably end up with several straight-pin punctures and at least one ripped-off fingernail.

Sure, it would be a lot easier to just pitch the pants. But farmers, or at least the one I mend for, go through a lot of jeans. Plus, rips and holes materalize often long before the sturdy denims are even close to being worn out. With farm commodity prices on the skids for months and farm milk prices at a 25-year low, sheer economics demands that "holey jeans" with reuse potential be transformed back into wearables.

Contemplating the size and location of some of the rips and tears, one wonders who the wearer managed to come away without bodily injuries. At the very least of the jeans gaps and gouges pose great possibility for draftiness and even potential embarrassment.

One large-scale, three-corner rip turned up recently in an almost-new pair of jeans, a 4x6-inch flap halted only by the reinforcement of a back pocket. This rather massive destruction in the seat area must have come from the grabby clutches of a sturdy piece of steel. My imagination can hear the ripping sound as the fabric gave way to a jagged edge of some piece of farm equipment or business end of a quarter-inch bolt.

A smattering of ragged small holes in the back of another pair, all located above and between the back pockets, hint of rough metal at some place of frequent sitting. Perhaps it was the back of the driver's seat of one of the silage trucks, or maybe a tractor seat frame losing its cushioning foam.

Damage on another pair looked all too familiar, scattered holes of various sizes all up and down the front of a right pant leg. Welding fallout, no doubt, tiny sparks landing on denim fabric with enough heat to slightly burn the threads. (And, occasionally, the skin beneath.) After a couple of launderings, brushing against cows, handling straw bales, etc., the weakened fabric begins falling apart into real holes. Which require a real big patch to encompass the widespread area of wear-and-tear in one fell swoop.

Whipped off the pile quickly and back into a storage drawer were a couple of pairs on which a prior patch had merely come loose, probably stitched too close to the edge to resist the overtures of a broken door hinge. A couple of easy ones like that are a morale booster partway through this tedious job.

Time ran out before I even got to the work shirts suffering from three-corner-tear visits with protruding nails, zippers trashed on otherwise-sturdy thermal sweatshirts, or workshirt minus buttons seemingly put on them for one-time use. And, I was ready to quit anyway, after finding two pairs of jeans with those dreaded rips in the fabric next to the zipper seams.

Those are enough to make you tear your hair out.

Which, I suppose, could be considered just one more ripoff.

Pennsylvania Society Of Farm Women Host 38th Spring Rally

SHIPPENSBURG (Cumberland Co.) — On May 21, Franklin County Society of Farm Women hosted the 38th Spring Rally, a statewide function with farm women from all over Pennsylvania. It was conducted at the Biestle Company in Shippensburg. The theme was United Are We in 2003. Members were encouraged to wear red, white, and blue. With 532 in attendance that was estimated about one-quarter of our 2000 women membership in Pennsylvania.

The Harold Crider family performed devotions by singing along with a slide presentation titled "This Is My Father's World."

The speakers for the rally were Nina Reddig and Darlene Resh, Adams County extension agents. They spoke to us on the Magic of Laughter while acting out a skit.

Members were served lunch prepared by Antrim House, Greencastle. After lunch a group of talented young men from the Waynesboro High School "The Tribesmen" entertained. They are an all boys choir who are not connected to their school chorus.

Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser

The other week I went to school. My granddaughter's teacher asked her pupils to invite their grandmothers to tell about their youth. Apparently, I was the only one who responded.

While the children sat on the floor in front of me, I sat in a big rocking chair and told them about my home life and going to school. Later someone told me that I ought to write those things down for our children. I think that I have written enough things down on paper.

Our youngest son and daughter are building a very large cottage on acreage that they bought in a faraway county. Recently, we drove there with our son and his children. It started out as a rainy day, but we had sunshine in the afternoon. He measured the space for some windows to be made and then we still had time for walks in the wooded acreage. I went down a steep hill to a stream where the grandchildren found frogs and crayfish. The only trouble with that was that I had to climb the long, steep hill to get back to the car. So, I took a few rest stops as I'm not getting any younger. In fact, today is my birthday.

The other day two big boxes arrived for my husband. Our daughter sent him large, perfect fruit in one box with cheese and mixed nuts. The other box had a round tin of unusual assorted candies. We'd never seen any of those kinds before.

I'm sure that our children are concerned about us as they often telephone us. But, most of them live too far away to visit very often, so I write letters to them.

Well Preserved

What's the Problem?
Jellied Products

The Well Preserved news column is prepared by Lancaster County Cooperative Extension. It includes food preservation information and questions.

Even the best food preserver has had the experience of making jelly or jam the same way as always and for some reason the product does not turn out right on a particular occasion. This scenario requires some problem solving.

Why is the jelly (or jam) too thin? This problem has many possibilities from ingredients to preservation methods. The ripeness of the fruit affects the consistency of the jell. Over-ripe fruit contains less natural pectin than just-ripe fruit and may result in a thinner spread even if commercial pectin is added. The opposite effect is also true. An under-ripe fruit contains more natural pectin and may give a more firm result than usual.

Incorrect proportions of sugar, acid, pectin, and fruit can cause problems. Use tested recipes and measure accurately. Too little sugar results in a thin jam; too much sugar results in a thicker jam. Insufficient acid results in a soft gel. Some fruits require added acid in the form of lemon juice if the fruit does not have enough acid. Excess fruit makes the jelly thinner; less fruit makes a thicker jelly.

The order in which these basic ingredients are combined depends upon the type of added pectin used. Powdered pectin is combined with the fruit and the sugar is added last. Liquid pectin is added after the fruit and sugar have come to a boil. Powdered and liquid pectin cannot be substituted for one another without disastrous results. With the many new jelling products on the market, it is important to follow the directions provided with the product.

Overcooking the fruit to extract the juice lowers the jellying capacity of the pectin in the fruit. Using too much water to extract the juice can be another problem.

Proper cooking affects the consistency of the finished product. Jellies and jams with added pectin must be cooked for the specified time at a rolling boil. A rolling boil is a rapid boil that cannot be stirred down. It bubbles up, which is why you need a large kettle when making jams and jellies. Over cooking can break down the pectin. It really requires a judgment call as to what is a rolling boil. Long slow cooking destroys the pectin in the fruit juice which can be a problem for jellies made without added pectin. Jellies without added pectin need to be cooked rapidly to the jellying point (240°F).

Why should cooked jelly be made in small batches? If a larger quantity of juice is used, it will be necessary to boil it longer, thus causing loss of flavor, darkening of jelly, and toughening of jelly. Make only one recipe if using added pectin or use only four to six cups of juice in each batch of jelly made without added pectin.

Do not move jellied products for 12 hours after they are made. Some types of jelly and jam require up to a week to set. Therefore, you may want to wait awhile before deciding to remake a syrupy spread.

Over-processing jellies and jams in the boiling water bath can cause the pectin to break down. Process spreads that have been canned in sterilized jars for 5 minutes in the boiling water bath; process spreads that have been put in clean jars that have not been sterilized for 10 minutes in the boiling water bath.

Why are there bubbles on the top of the jelly? If you notice bubbles when you first make the jelly, the pan or the pouring utensil may have been too far from the top of the jar as the jelly was poured or the jelly may have been poured slowly allowing the air to become trapped in the hot jelly. Failure to skim the foam off the jelly before pouring it into jars may result in bubbles on the top and throughout the jelly. Adding ½ teaspoon butter or margarine before cooking the jelly or jam will reduce foaming. If you notice bubbles after the jelly has been in storage a period of time, they may indicate spoilage and the jelly should not be used.

Why does the jelly look cloudy? The juice may have been squeezed through the jelly bag forcing out some of the solids. Let the juice drip through the jelly bag and squeeze the bag gently if necessary. Also the jelly may have been allowed to stand before it was poured into the jars; it should be poured into the jars immediately upon reaching the gelling point.

Why do fruit preserves sometimes shrivel? The syrup is too heavy for the fruit. Follow instructions for the specific type of fruit being preserved.

Why does jelly "weep?" Excess acid in the juice makes the pectin unstable or the jelly was stored in too warm a place or the storage temperature fluctuated.

In the next Well Preserved column we will look at how to remake a thin jelly.

If you have food preservation questions, a home economist is available to answer questions on Wednesdays 10 a.m.-1 p.m., call (717) 394-6851 or write Penn State Cooperative Extension, Lancaster County, 1383 Arcadia Rd., Rm. 1, Lancaster, PA 17601.

Food Preservation Class Offered

COLLEGEVILLE (Montgomery Co.) — Remember those delicious home canned goods that Grandma used to put up from her backyard garden? Canning procedures have changed dramatically over the years, but many folks still look forward to eating the "fruits of their labor" over the winter months with home preserved foods. To make sure you don't endanger your family's health by following out-of-date canning instructions, Penn State Cooperative Extension is offering a hands-on workshop to teach proper methods of home canning.

The three-hour session will be conducted on Thursday, June 26 at 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and repeated at 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the Montgomery County 4-H Center on Rt. 113 in Creamery.

Participants will learn the latest methods of using a boiling water bath and a pressure canner. They will receive a comprehensive Cooperative Extension canning book and take home two jars of properly processed fruits and vegetables.

Registration is required and class size is limited. There is a cost of $25 per person or $40 per couple. To register, call the extension office at (610) 489-4315.

Last Chance To Enter Recipe Drawing

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Entries must be postmarked by June 2 to enter your favorite recipe using dairy products for Lancaster Farming's annual dairy recipe drawing celebrating June Dairy Month.

To enter the drawing for a chance to win one of the $500-worth of prizes, select your favorite recipe, which must include a substantial amount of at least one dairy product. These ingredients count as a dairy product: milk, cream, sour cream, whipped cream, butter, yogurt, buttermilk, dry milk, ice cream, and all hard and soft cheeses.

Please check your ingredients carefully. Margarine and nondairy substitutes such as frozen whipped topping do not qualify as dairy products.

Dairy recipes are needed for appetizers, soups, breads, entrees, vegetables, desserts, beverages, snacks, and salads.

Clearly print or type your recipe entry. Be sure to give accurate measurements, temperatures, cooking and baking times, sizes of baking dishes to use, and other beneficial information. We reserve the right to disqualify entries if these guidelines are not followed.

With your entry, include a few paragraphs about yourself and your family. Although it is not required, a photograph of you and your family is preferred. We and our readers love to "see" the people who send in the recipe.

Photographs will be returned if you write your name and address on the back of the photo.

Only one entry per family allowed. This contest is for adults who are 18 years old and older. We require this age because children who send in recipes often inadvertently miss measurements, ingredients, or parts of the instructions.

Send your recipe, photo, and accompanying information with your complete address; otherwise, we cannot mail your prize if you win. We are astonished when we see how many people do not include their full address and therefore forfeit receiving a prize.

The state dairy princess and alternates will select the winners through a random drawing.

Recipe entries will be printed throughout the month of June. A list of the winning names will appear in the June 28 issue of Lancaster Farming.

Send your entry to Lou Ann Good, Lancaster Farming Dairy Drawing, P.O. Box 609, 1 E. Main St. Ephrata, PA 17522, or e-mail your entry and digital photo to LGOOD.EPH@LNPNEWS.COM.

Maryland Leaders Visit Ag Education Foundation Headquarters

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md. — Dr. Nancy Grasmick, Maryland's Secretary of Education and Lewis Riley, Secretary of Agriculture, recently visited the Senator William H. Amoss Agricultural Center in Havre de Grace to learn about the educational programs of the Maryland Agricultural Education Foundation.

Highlights of past programs, details of new programs, and discussion on future program ideas were discussed by the Secretary of Education and State Department of Education staffers Kathy Oliver, Jim Ferrant, and Becky Horn.

Foundation executive director Marty Stephens and education directors Jeanne Mueller and Jamie Picardy gave Dr. Grasmick a tour of one of their mobile agri-science labs which travels the state visiting elementary and middle schools with their message of ag literacy.

The Foundation has three mobile classrooms that travel from Garrett County to the shore and from Cecil County to the Potomac River in southern Maryland for nine months each year. Staffed with Foundation-trained teachers, students learn about Maryland agricultural products, biotechnology: food and fiber and aquatics and agriculture working together.

The Foundation's educational program is called Ag in the Classroom and teachers are brought together each summer for an intense week of learning to infuse agricultural concepts into required curriculum in language arts, math, science, and social studies. The workshop provides five action-packed days of seminars, field trips, demonstrations, and hands-on activities. The 2003 teacher workshop is scheduled for June 23-27 in Westminster and teachers can register for $100 and earn three in-service credits for their participation.

The Maryland Agriculture Showcase is ready to travel to public events educating Maryland residents about agriculture and how it effects each individual daily.

Children visiting the Maryland Ag Showcase try their hand at milking a cow when the Showcase visited the Maryland Sheep & Wool Festival recently.

Maryland Agriculture Showcase Rolls Out

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — The Maryland Agricultural Education Foundation recently introduced its newest educational resource, a mobile trailer named the Maryland Agriculture Showcase.

This "agricultural billboard on wheels" will be traveling throughout Maryland in its inaugural year educating Marylanders about the state's top agricultural products and the impact that agriculture has on the lives of every citizen every day.

Rolled out to an audience of Maryland's agricultural leaders gathered at the Maryland Department of Agriculture in Annapolis on April 23, it was dedicated and rolled into service by Secretary of Agriculture Lewis Riley and Foundation President Ewing McDowell. The Showcase has a busy season ahead as it is already booked for 25 events and the Foundation hopes to fill the schedule shortly.

The Showcase features a variety of educational exhibits featuring information and interactive fun for both children and adults. Hands-on activities include a simulated cow milking experience, broiler chicken kids' puzzle, fruit and vegetable riddles, mini-greenhouse and landscaping magnet board, and more.

The exhibit on Maryland's horse industry provides the opportunity to measure your height in "hands" which is the way that horses are measured. A changeable display featuring beef cattle, hogs, and sheep provides visitors the opportunity to test their knowledge about these agricultural products.

Funding for the Showcase is provided through sales of Maryland's "Ag Tag" license plates, public and private grants, and private donations to the Foundation. Additional funding for this project has been provided by several industry partners including the Delmarva Poultry Industry, FORVM for Rural Maryland, Hargrove Inc., Maryland Department of Agriculture, Maryland Farm Bureau, Maryland Grain Producers Utilization Board, Maryland Horse Breeders Association, Maryland Soybean Board, Maryland Nursery & Landscape Association, and the Mid-Atlantic Dairy Association.

A hammer was used to break the taffy whenever it was purchased. Yvonne would love to have the recipe to make the delicious taffy. Woolworths only sold it during the summer months.

ANSWER — A. Weaver requested cracker and pretzel recipes. Thanks to Lizzie Stoltzfus, Gap, for these recipes:

Soda Crackers

7½ cups flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 cup butter
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt

Mix together and add water or buttermilk or regular milk to make a soft dough. Roll thin and cut in squares. Bake at 400 degrees until golden brown.

Rivel Soup

2½quarts milk
1 teaspoon salt

Heat to scalding and add rivels. Make as follows:

1 egg, beaten with fork
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon salt.

Add to heated milk, stirring constantly. Bring to a boil, turn to low, and stir another minute or two. Turn off heat and let steam for 5 minutes. Add chicken broth powder, if desired, for added flavor.

Rivel Soup

2 cups all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg, beaten
4 cups chicken broth
1 cup whole corn kernels, crushed

Combine flour, salt, and beaten egg and mix together with the fingers until mixture is crumbly. Pour this mixture into the gently boiling broth. Add the corn and cook for about 10 minutes. The rivels look like boiled rice when cooked.

ANSWER — Robert Loss, Middleburg, wanted a recipe for soupies. He wanted the exact ingredients, press time, and cure time. He requested an actual recipe and not advice to contact a sausage association. Thanks to Lee Laverty, Mount Joy, for this recipe:

Soupies
(Cured And Dried Sopressata Or Sopra Sada)

10 pounds of lean, coarse ground pork (if grinding the meat yourself, use grinder plate with ½-inch holes)
4 ounces of powdered dextrose or corn syrup solids (this adds sweetness and is option). Can substitute 2 ounces table sugar.
8-9 tablespoons regular salt
4 ounces black pepper (course or fine ground, some can be whole)
2 level teaspoons of Con Yeager tinted curing salt Number 813
¾ to 1 tablespoon hot cayenne red pepper (optional)

Processing:

Meats should be coarse ground. Mix all ingredients well. Refrigerate for 2 days to let the flavors "marry." Regrind meats through a ¼-inch hole plate and stuff into a natural casing that is about 2 inches in diameter. (Sausage will dry and shrink to about 1¼ inches). Natural beef middles or hog middles are suitable and commonly used for this.

Cold smoke stuffed sausage for several hours or until desired color is obtained. Some processors do not smoke the meat. However, the antibacterial properties of natural smoking help to preserve the drying phase. The sausage is then hung up to dry for 6-8 weeks and loses about 40 percent of its original weight.

At the end of the drying phase, the sopressata is then cut to length and commonly stored in jars of olive oil. When eaten, it is commonly sliced thin and placed on crackers.

This sausage is usually made at home during the colder months, when it can be hung to dry in a cool place such as a garage or attic. Keep in mind that this meat product is not cooked, so care must be used to begin with the freshest and cleanest ingredients. Do not use venison.

ANSWER — M.J. Wade wanted recipes to make fruit roll-ups from natural ingredients. Thanks to M. Martin for this recipe:

Jell-O-Roll

1 cup water
⅔ cup Jell-O, any flavor
24 large or 3 cups mini marshmallows

Mix water and Jell-O. Microwave for 3 minutes on high. Add marshmallows. Microwave 50 seconds more until marshmallows are partly melted, then stir until all marshmallows are melted. Do not overmelt. Pour into greased 9 by 13-inch pan. Refrigerate until firm, or about 45 minutes. Loosen edges and roll like a jelly roll. Cut into thin slices.

Dairy Family Offers 'Taste Of Home'

PHILADELPHIA (Philadelphia Co.) — Paul and Nadene Cashell of NaPaul Farms in Chambersburg offer up an easy, cheesy corn chowder recipe in the current issue of Sargento Cheese's "Taste of Home's Recipe Collection."

The recipe is part of a special feature section sponsored jointly by the national dairy checkoff program and Sargento to help educate the public about the versatility of cheese and to salute America's dairy farmers. "Taste of Home" reaches more than 4 million consumers quarterly through subscription and retail checkout and newsstand sales. The current issue is available now through June 2.

The Cashells were among several producers from across the country invited to submit one of their favorite quick and easy recipes using cheese. All are members of the checkoff's Dairy Farmer Spokesperson Network, which helps educate the public about responsible on-farm production practices such as food quality, animal care, and environmental stewardship.

Dairy farmers who participate in the Dairy Farmer Spokesperson Network receive extensive media training and conduct media interviews in major consumer markets. The Cashells are members of both the national spokesperson network and a regional network sponsored by Mid-Atlantic Dairy Association.

As national spokespersons and former Young Cooperators for Land O'Lakes, the Cashells understand the need for dairy promotion. "We've been involved with programs such as the Young Cooperators for three years," Mrs. Cashell said. "We've learned a lot about the national promotional efforts, including advertising, through our involvement with the National Milk Producers Federation."

At NaPaul Farms, the Cashells milk 350 Holsteins and farm approximately 700 acres. They have four full-time and two part-time employees. Mrs Cashell works away from the farm as a computer programmer for Computer Sciences Corporation, a government contractor for the Department of Defense.

The Cashells are being recognized for their dedication to the dairy industry. Their cheese and corn chowder is the April featured recipe on the www.ilovecheese.com Website.

Tee Off In 'Tee Times For Tuition'

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The Penn State Department of Dairy and Animal Science invites you to enjoy a day of golf and fellowship at their third annual "Tee Times for Tuition" golf outing. This year's event will take place Tuesday, June 17, at the Penn State Blue Course along Route 26 in State College.

Individuals and organizations are encouraged to join their agricultural friends and participate in this enjoyable and worthwhile event. Individual registrations start with a $100 fee, which covers the participants' greens fees, cart, continental breakfast, and BBQ dinner. Various levels of sponsorship are also available from the $250 sponsorship to the corporate Sponsorship, which offers incentives based on each $1,000 donated.

Although participants of the golf outing come to enjoy the game and spend time with others who are interested in the Department of Dairy and Animal Science, the money raised to fund the student scholarships is the primary goal, and an integral part of the department.

Two hundred ten graduate and undergraduate students are enrolled in a Dairy and Animal Science major at Penn State, with 70 of those relying upon $74,000 of Dairy and Animal Science scholarship funding to complete their education. The department's scholarship honors represent 14.3 percent of the total tuition expense for the 70 students receiving awards.

The "Tee Times for Tuition" format is a best ball scramble with a shotgun start. A minimum of two drives is required for each golfer. There are four "closest to the pin" par three holes, one "longest putt" hole and one "longest drive" hole. The winners of the par three "closest to the pin" holes will have a chance to "shoot it out" on the 18th green for a prize. There is no rain date for the event. Preregistration is necessary.

Visit http://www.das.psu.edu for more information on registering for "Tee Times for Tuition." If you do not have web access or if you have any questions concerning the outing, contact Sylvia Way at (814) 865-1362 or sway@psu.edu.

Stream MAPS
of Pennsylvania, New York, New England, New Jersey, Ohio, & Maryland/Delaware

LOST STREAM MAP

The STREAM MAP OF PENNSYLVANIA was completed in 1965 after a thirty-year effort by Howard Higbee, a former Penn State Professor

The map is known as the LOST STREAM MAP to some anglers

Professor Higbee succeeded in creating a map of the highest detail possible a map that shows every stream and lake He painstakingly plotted by hand the location of 45,000 miles of streams onto a 3 by 5 foot map

The map sold extremely well--until it was lost several years later. Incredibly, the printer entrusted with the original drawing and printing plates declared bankruptcy, then carelessly hauled Higbee's 30 years of work to a landfill.

The few remaining dog-eared copies became a prized fisherman's possession Professor Higbee was offered $400 for one of his last maps. And state agencies were forced to keep their copies under lock and key.

Experts told Professor Higbee that reprints were impossible, because the maps were printed in non-photographic blue.

Then, in 1991, at the age of 91, Howard Higbee's dream came true. Computers made it possible to reprint the map Howard said, "I never thought I'd live to see this day."

Why every angler and boater needs these maps

It is estimated that 10% of all the anglers catch 90% of the fish. Regardless of which group you fall into...there's a sure way to up your odds...simply try new fishing waters. Now, with this map you can find hidden streams and lakes.

Pennsylvania, New York, New England, New Jersey, Ohio and Maryland/Delaware are loaded with great fishing holes...many of them overlooked. Thousands of miles of streams, rivers and lakes are now easy-to-locate on one map.

The 3-foot-by-5-foot Pennsylvania map shows 45,000 miles of streams plus lakes. The 3 1/2-foot-by-4 1/2-foot New York map shows 65,000 miles of streams plus lakes. The 3-foot-by-4-foot New England map shows 36,000 miles of streams plus lakes. The 2 1/2-foot-by-3-foot New Jersey map shows 8,300 miles of streams plus lakes. The 3-foot-by-3-foot Ohio Map shows 29,000 miles of streams plus lakes The 2-foot-by-3 1/2-foot Maryland/Delaware map shows 12,000 miles of streams plus lakes.

Professor Higbee's Stream Maps are the first and only highly detailed maps of their kind.

Small Frey's Children Care visit the Historic Manheim Preservation Foundation on Friday, May 23. The class discovered that history is fun when taught by Ben Franklin. Well, he looks like Ben Franklin, but Michael Graham is best known as Sparky the Clown in the Manheim area.

Ben Franklin Uses Tricks, Fun To Teach Small Freys A History Lesson

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Three- to five-year-old children might be considered a bit young for a museum tour, but last Friday a class from Small Frey's Children Care proved they aren't too young for a history lesson.

Jim Hosler said the Historic Manheim Preservation Foundation invited the children to expose them to a bit of Manheim's history.

"They might be a bit young to appreciate the Stiegel glassware and other artifacts in the museum, but we wanted to make the visit fun so they'd learn to appreciate history," Hosler said.

From the laughter and interest the children showed, the visit was a great success. Michael Graham, who usually dresses as Sparky the Clown, depicted Ben Franklin. Children watched enthralled as Ben Franklin performed magical tricks to talk about the importance of the American flag, patriotism, and Memorial Day observances. Ben Franklin talked about how he invented the lightening rod and other inventions. He showed the children $20 bills, each printed with a photo of Ben Franklin.

Each child was presented a flag and a bag full of goodies, which included a stars and stripes pencil, a siren whistle, and lots of candy wrapped in red, white, and blue. They also were served milk and cookies.

The museum, carriage house, and gardens are open for tour at no charge by the nonprofit organization. To make an appointment, call the Foundation at (717) 665-5560.

Movie To Promote Milk

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Capitalizing on the launch of the Disney/Pixar new animated movie "Finding Nemo," dairy farmers have partnered with Keebler and Kellogg's to encourage Moms to buy more milk for their kids.

"This partnership makes milk fun and will increase gallon milk sales, which will also increase dairy product demand," said John Chrisman, spokesperson for the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program.

From now through June 11, Moms who buy two gallons of milk and two Keebler or Kellogg's products can get their kids a free "Finding Nemo" giant inflatable toy of "Bruce the Shark," a character in the movie, by mail. Consumers will find the promotional offer on 20 million packages of Kellogg's Rice Krispies Treats and select brands of Keebler cookies, including E.L Fudge and Vanilla Wafers.

Kids Mix It Up With Milk

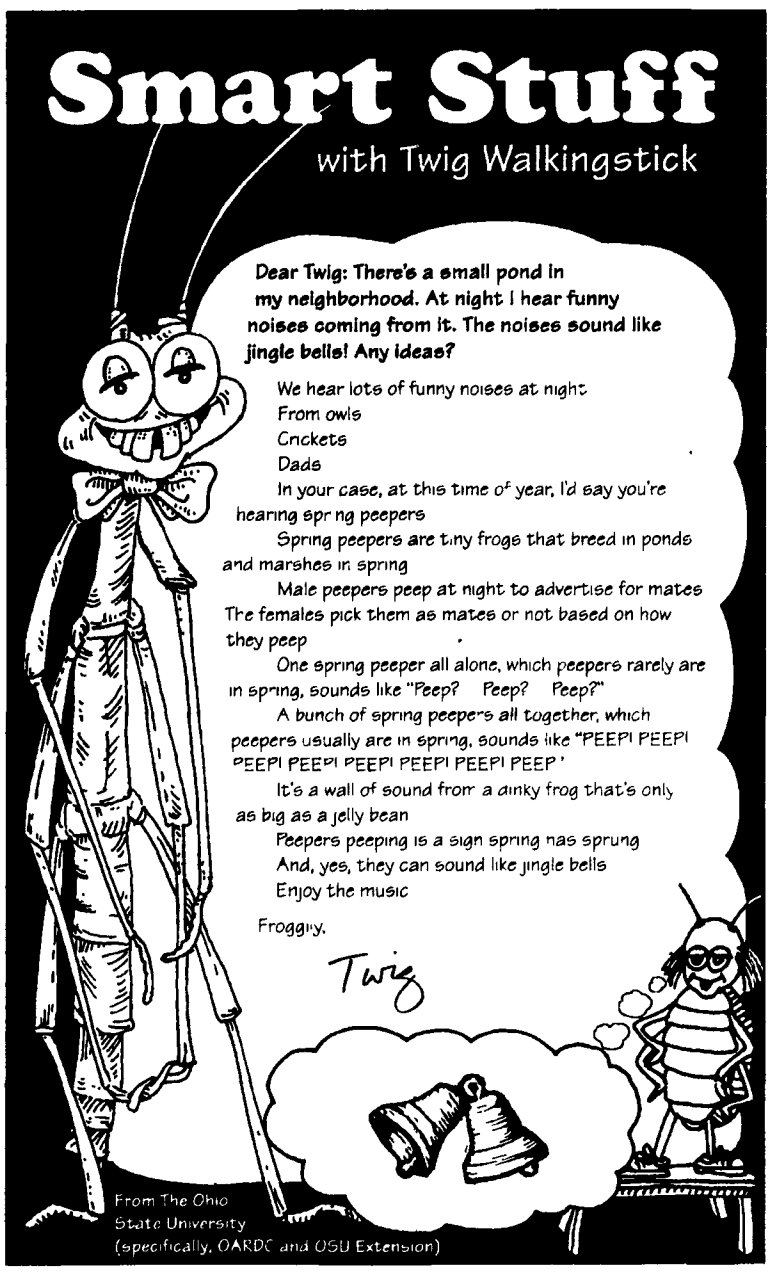
PHILADELPHIA (Philadelphia Co.) — Kids attending the Delaware Valley College A-Day and the University of Maryland Campus Day recently had a good excuse to play with their food during special "Mix It With Milk" promotions at each event.

Starting with a glass of white milk, kids could create their own cool milk flavors by adding mix-ins such as flavored syrups, powdered drink mixes or JELL-O® brand products. They also received recipe ideas and information to enter the national "Mix It With Milk 'n JELL-O®" contest sponsored by the national dairy checkoff program and JELL-O.

"This promotion is an excellent example of how dairy checkoff dollars are maximized for long-term results," said Alexa Stoner, industry relations specialist for Mid-Atlantic Dairy Association. "Partnering with a national brand like JELL-O allows us to increase the demand for dairy in a cost-effective way. Through this campaign, we are encouraging kids to drink more milk early in life, which will help increase dairy demand for the long term."

Kids can enter the monthly "Mix It With Milk 'n JELL-O® contests sponsored by the "got milk?"®/Milk Mustache campaign and JELL-O. Contestants create their own wildly delicious milk drink recipes using JELL-O Brand Gelatin or JELL-O Brand Instant Pudding powder and other ingredients.

Monthly winners receive $1,000 and a trip for two to New York City for a chance to compete in a "Milk Mix Off" in which the grand-prize winner will receive a $10,000 college scholarship and a year's supply of JELL-O products. The contest runs through October 2003 and features a different theme each month. For more information, visit the Kid's Club section of www.whymilk.com.



Smart Stuff
with Twig Walkingstick
Dear Twig: There's a small pond in my neighborhood. At night I hear funny noises coming from it. The noises sound like jingle bells! Any ideas?
We hear lots of funny noises at night
From owls
Crickets
Dads
In your case, at this time of year, I'd say you're hearing spring peepers
Spring peepers are tiny frogs that breed in ponds and marshes in spring
Male peepers peep at night to advertise for mates The females pick them as mates or not based on how they peep
One spring peeper all alone, which peepers rarely are in spring, sounds like "Peep? Peep? Peep?"
A bunch of spring peepers all together, which peepers usually are in spring, sounds like "PEEP! PEEP! PEEP! PEEP! PEEP! PEEP! PEEP! PEEP!"
It's a wall of sound from a dinky frog that's only as big as a jelly bean
Peepers peeping is a sign spring has sprung
And, yes, they can sound like jingle bells
Enjoy the music
Froggily,
Twig

ANSWER — Fred Appel, Paradise, asked if anyone could furnish the words to a poem in which the first line of one stanza reads, "If you go first, and I remain. . ." and the first line of another stanza reads, "If I go first and you remain." Thanks to Dave Anspach, Blandon, and to Lee Laverty, Mount Joy, for sending the words credited to Albert Roswell.

Should you go first, and I remain,
To walk this road alone,
I'll live in memory's garden, Dear,
With happy days we've known.
In spring, I'll wait for roses red,
When fades the lilac blue.
In early fall, when brown leaves fall,
I'll catch a glimpse of you.
Should you go first, and I remain,
For the battles to be fought.
Each thing you've touched along the way,
Will be a hallowed spot!
I'll hear your voice,
I'll see your smile,
Though blindly I may grope.
The memory of your helping hand
Will buoy me with hope.
Should you go first, and I remain,
To finish out the scroll,
No lenth'ning shadow shall creep in
To make this Life seem droll.
We've known so much of happiness,
We've had our cup of joy,
And memory is one gift of God,
That death cannot destroy.
Should you go first, and I remain,
One thing I'd have you do:
Walk slowly down that long, lone path,
For soon, I'll follow you.
I'll want to know each step you take
That I may walk the same.
For someday down that lonely road,
You'll hear me call your name.

Pork Checkoff Develops Pork Kitchen Companion For Home Cooks

DES MOINES, Iowa — The Pork Checkoff created The Pork Kitchen Companion to help inform consumers on the essentials of cooking pork. This Checkoff-funded booklet offers pork cooking advice, tips and recipe ideas from some of the foremost pork authorities in America.

"To Americans accustomed to convenience foods and microwave meals, cooking unfamiliar cuts of meat can be intimidating," explains Tom Floy, a National Pork Board member and a pork producer from Thornton, Iowa.

A recent Checkoff-funded survey shows rising interest in home cooking. More than half of Americans (56 percent) say they are cooking more today than they did two years ago. However, home cooks say they lack basic meat cooking knowledge. According to the survey, two-thirds (66 percent) of Americans hesitate to cook large roasts or unfamiliar cuts of meat because they aren't sure how to prepare them.

Pork producers can see this brochure on the Internet at www.porkboard.org, clicking on the "Pork Consumer" section and then selecting "Offers" and then 'Brochure offers" or can order a copy by calling the Producer Service Center at (800) 456-PORK.

Road Kill Cafe Attracts Fun-Loving Clientele

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

ARTEMAS (Bedford Co.) — Way back in 1985, Barbara Snider had a dream to open a country store in picturesque, but very rural, Artemas located in Mann Township.

Artemas is 27 miles south of the small town of Everett and about 20 miles north of Cumberland, Maryland. It might best be described as in the middle of nowhere.

Passersby are usually on their way to one town or the other for various chores or shopping expeditions. In the fall, Mann Township becomes a haven for leaf peakers and hunters. The Potomac River is nearby for fishing.

Prior to the store, there wasn't any place to purchase even a store-bought lunch in the area.

Barbara saw the need for a lunch place. She loved to cook, so she put a few picnic tables in the back of the store and began to sell some sandwiches, homemade soup, and her speciality, homebaked pies.

When her son, Mike, came into the business with her, he persuaded her to add more picnic tables and broaden her menu.

Her fun-loving clientele were delighted to have an "eaten" place in Artemas and, for a practical joke, found a piece of old barn wood and painted the words, "Road Kill Cafe" on it. Barbara was so amused, she hung the sign and thus, a "star" was born.

Barbara expanded her menu even more by offering daily specials and a line of giftware with the slogan Road Kill Cafe printed boldly on the shirt fronts, ball caps, and coffee mugs.

A fun menu offers such items as "Center Line Bovine Tastes real good, straight from the hood;" "Flat Cat," "Collie Hit by a Trolley," and "Round of Hound."

A daily special treat was "Guess That Mess" and late night delights included rack of raccoon, smear of deer, awesome possum, or cheap sheep. A wall full of road kill memorabilia and cartoons donated by guests help decorate the walls.

Barbara and Mike's real menu offers simmering pots of homemade soups and stews. Sausage gravy and biscuits is to die for. Monday offers hot roast beef sandwiches, Thursday, it's ribs, and Friday, fish and chicken, baked beans, and macaroni and cheese. Once or twice a year, fresh rabbit, bought from local growers, is offered.

Everything is homemade and Barbara does all of the pie baking herself.

"I make about 50 pies per week," she said.

Some days no pies are served; instead, an employee makes a special homemade dessert.

Mike and Barbara attend local county fairs at Alleghany and Bedford and purchasing most of their meat from the ribbon-winning "on the hoof" animals shown by local kids.

During the summer months, fresh vegetables and fruits are puchased from local farmers.

"We try to keep as much business in the area as possible," Barbara said. They have 15 part-time employees.

Word of mouth spread the word of the Road Kill Cafe located in an area so difficult to find even a map isn't much help. Half the fun is undoubtedly getting there.

Mike and Barbara Snider, mother and son, own the Road Kill Cafe.

"We get folks from everywhere," Barbara said.

In one week, they had two couples driving from Glen Burnie, near Washington D.C.; a square dance group from Altoona, and other guests from Frostburg, Bedford, and Needmore. There are busloads of senior citizens who come for the afternoon and church groups who come for an outing.

Hours are 8 a.m. until 7 p.m. Monday through Saturday. Breakfast is served until 10:30 a.m. Sunday hours are noon until 2:30 p.m. but no hot food is served.

The retirees from Potomac Edison meet at the Road Kill on a regular basis and sometimes a social group or perhaps a group of visiting nurses will hold a meeting lasting most of the afternoon.

"We love these groups, they are so interesting," Barbara said. There are many birthday or anniversary parties held here.

Hunting season brings a bounty of customers and some choose to stay at the Snider cabins, which rent for $25 a day and are far from primitive with air conditioning, heat, refrigerators, microwave ovens, and primestar television. They also have several campsites. Green Ridge and Buchanan State Forests are only five minutes away.

Last summer, the Sniders added an ice cream shop.

The store offers general food, hardware, guns ammunition, hunting and fishing licenses and all sporting supplies.

Barbara and Matt have proven the age-old adage: "Build a better mousetrap and the world will beat a path to your door."

It might be a difficult path to follow, but Road Kill Cafe is that good — people find it.

For reservations for groups of ten or more call (814) 784-3257.

Directions from Breezewood: Follow Route 30 to Everett. Take Route 26 south. At Clearville, do not follow Route 26, but go straight ahead. Take the first right past the Clearville school and stay on the main road to the Fairview Church. This will be about 25 miles. At the church, turn right and stay on the main road (the road will veer to the left, do not go straight ahead). Road Kill is on the right. It is about two miles from the church.

From Maryland, take 68 west to scenic route 40.

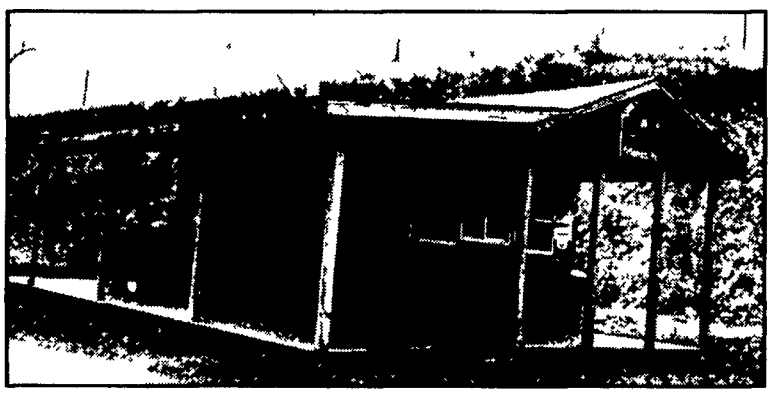
An outside view of the Road Kill.

Customers eat inside the Road Kill Cafe.



The ice cream stand was added last year.

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Penn State's University Creamery is world-famous for its ice cream. This reputation makes it a much-loved landmark for campus visitors and Nittany Lion faithful.

Other Creamery items from years past are less well-known to Penn Staters, but one particular class of objects is eagerly sought by collectors of Penn State paraphernalia and a small army of specialized collectors throughout the world. These are glass milk bottles bearing Penn State identification.

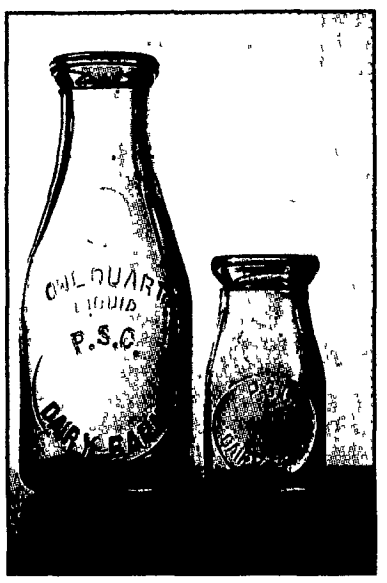
While they may never approach the popularity of the Nittany Lion, the demand for the once common Penn State glass milk bottles has escalated in recent years and so has the price. Dollars paid for some individual Penn State milk bottles in excellent condition could buy several hundred of today's Creamery ice cream cones.

The story of Penn State Creamery glass milk bottles begins nearly a century ago. When the Patterson Building was constructed in 1904, the creamery located there began bottling milk in glass bottles. Those first bottles didn't even include the words "Penn State." Instead they were labeled "State College Dairy" in raised letters. That's all — no other information was on the bottle. The first College Creamery delivery wagon for retail customers was identified with "State College Dairy" on the side panels and was drawn by one horse.

This first Creamery milk bottle was mouth-blown, having been made before the final development of the automatic bottle-making machine. It is apparently a quart in size, although there is no capacity indicated. Size identification was not needed until a 1907 law required milk or cream bottles or glass jars to be for consumers to have the capacity permanently blown into them during manufacture.

Patented September 17, 1889, by Thatcher Manufacturing Company as the celebrated

Those first bottles didn't even include the words "Penn State." Instead they were labeled "State College Dairy" in raised letters.



A completely different logo — "P.S.C. Dairy Barn" inside a circle — was also used from the early 1920s into the late 1940s.

An unsolved mystery surrounds the square Creamery bottles used in the early 1950s. Some have the college seal inside the Keystone, while on others the college seal is missing from an empty Keystone.

A picture of Old Main with the pre-1929 tower appears in the center of the above phrase, and Old Main appeared on Penn State milk bottles for the rest of their existence. However, this was the only bottle that ever carried the pre-1929 "old" Old Main bell tower. These bottles (quart, pint, and half-pint) in the author's collection are the only ones known to exist and the only Creamery milk bottles that ever carried advertising. On the opposite side (panel) was the slogan "Use College Ice Cream For All Occasions."

"Common Sense Milk Jar," the first Penn State Creamery bottle used "ligneous disks" — more commonly known as paper caps.

Although three "State College Dairy" bottles are known to exist, the one pictured from the author's collection is the only one that shows the manufacturer's mark and patent date on the bottom. The other two show the trade mark "Bestov," a jobber (middleman) of bottles in the early 1900s. They also say "To Be Washed and Returned," on the side, a slogan not on the author's bottle. It is thought the Creamery started with bottles supplied directly by Thatcher, then changed to Bestov as a jobber.

From 1904 until retail milk sales were discontinued in 1958, only two manufacturers supplied most of the glass milk bottles for the Creamery. These were Thatcher Manufacturing Company with a plant in Elmira, N.Y., and Owens-Illinois Glass Company with a plant in Clarion.

This information should be helpful to collectors of Creamery milk bottles. For example the author owns a half-pint bottle labeled only "State College." When purchased the seller was certain it meant "Penn State College" and priced it accordingly. However, the author later determined that the Florida Glass Company in Jacksonville, Florida, manufactured this bottle. It's highly doubtful that any Penn State milk bottles would have been shipped such a long distance because of transportation costs. In the early days of land-grant institutions like Penn State, several states had state colleges. Let the buyer beware!

Around 1918, the bottle logo was changed to "State College Creamery" with block letters embossed inside a circle. Capacity was embossed above the logo. An unusual characteristic of these bottles, which were used until about 1929, was the heavy, raised ribs on the neck of each size (quart, pint, and half-pint). The raised ribs provided a better grip for the deliverymen who carried the heavy, cold bottles in the early morning darkness. The ribs also provided a method of identification by touch in the darkness so a deliveryman could differentiate his bottles from those of a competitor. At least one patent was granted for this rib innovation. These "State College Creamery" bottles in the late teens and 1920s were made by Thatcher Manufacturing Company.

"State College Creamery" in block letters continued as the logo into the early 1930s, although smooth-neck bottles were used. What happened to the ribbed bottles? Apparently, the purchaser of Creamery milk bottles decided to try smooth-neck bottles. The quart and pint bottles were made by the Berney-Bond Glass Company of Clarion. The half-pint shows the mark of the Winslow Glass Company of Columbus, Ohio. Winslow was purchased by Berney-Bond in 1927. In 1930, the young Owens-Illinois Glass Company purchased Berney-Bond. The ribbed necks didn't appear again on Creamery milk bottles.

A completely different logo — "P.S.C. Dairy Barn" inside a circle — was also used concurrently from the early 1920s into the late 1940s. These bottles were filled in the milk house attached to the dairy barns and used only for milk sent to the campus dining halls and the sandwich shop located in the Old Main basement. They were made by Thatcher Manufacturing Company and did not appear on off-campus delivery routes.

Professor Emeritus Donald L. Ace started working in the barns as a freshman during fall semester 1941. Among other chores, he "cashed thousands of those P.S.C. Dairy Barn bottles." He remembers that milk produced in excess of campus dining hall needs was sent across the street to the Creamery in Borland Laboratory.

In 1932, Borland Laboratory was completed. Both the Creamery and the dairy department moved from Patterson Building to the new facility. This historic occasion apparently initiated two new milk bottle logos, which replaced previous bottle designs. The fourth bottle logo, which appeared about 1932, was dramatically different from predecessors. It had the Pennsylvania Keystone with The Pennsylvania State College Seal in the center embossed on the bottom half of each bottle. "State College Creamery" was embossed on the shoulder above this in Old English letters. This design was the only one to be embossed on the front and back of each bottle. These were used through the mid-1930s and were made by Owens-Illinois Glass Company, who continued as the only manufacturer of Creamery bottles through 1958.

Also around this time a fifth bottle logo appeared. Embossed in a round circle on one side only was "P.S.C. Dairy Dept. State College, Pa." These bottles were used for about a 10-year period through 1943.

Around 1940, the top of this bottle was changed to accommodate the "Dacro Top." The inside cap seat was eliminated, and an airtight, tamper-proof metal cap was securely locked in place over the top of the bottle. Apparently,

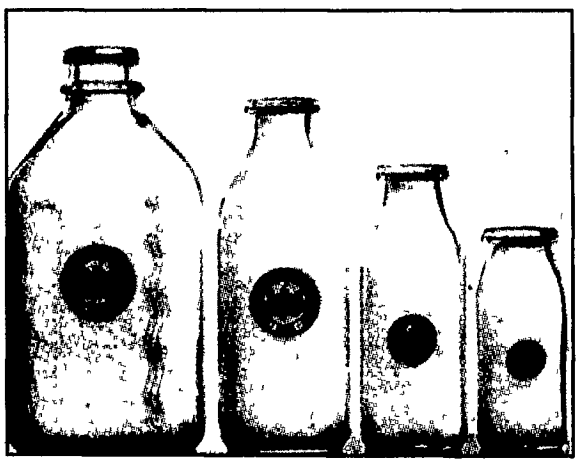
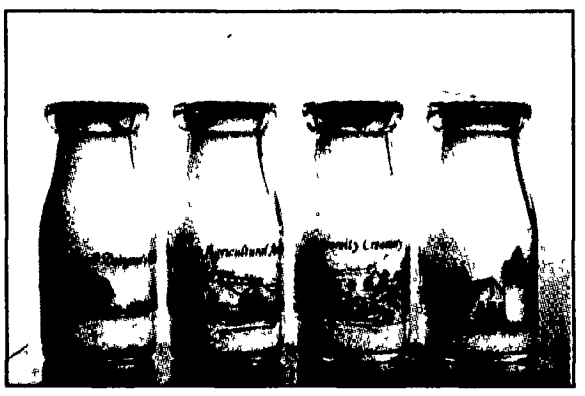
The third pyro design featured war slogans during World War II. The bottle shape had also changed from "tall round" to "squat round," which resembled a bowling pin.



The label wasn't the only thing that changed in 1953. A two-quart (half-gallon) size was added, and, for the first time, collectors looking for a complete set of University Creamery milk bottles needed four (two quart, quart, pint, and half-pint) instead of the traditional three.



The 2000 edition has a generic barn scene in blue and green. All subsequent editions have continued with the blue and green color. The second edition in 2001 carries a drawing of the Penn State Agricultural Arena. For the 2002 third edition, none other than the University Creamery is depicted. The "old" Penn State Dairy Barns adorn the fourth edition issued in 2003.

this was the last embossed milk bottle used by the Creamery, and it probably was discontinued about 1943.

Five known embossed Penn State Creamery milk bottle logos cover the following years. Years indicated are from bottles in the author's collection.

1. State College Dairy — 1904.

2. State College Creamery. a) ribbed necks — 1918-1927. b) smooth necks — 1929-1931.

3. P.S.C. Dairy Barn — 1922-1923.

4. State College Creamery (Olde English) — 1932-1936.

5. P.S.C. Dairy Dept. State College, Pa. — 1933-1943. a) with Dacro Top — 1940-1943.

Pyroglazing

The process of putting colored lettering and pictures on glass milk bottles is called pyroglazing. The process is actually a form of silk screening. It came into widespread commercial use in the U.S. during the mid-1930s.

The first use of pyroglazed (pyro) bottles by the Creamery occurred in 1937. This began the use of red color for all Creamery bottle logos until they were discontinued about 1960. The logo of "State College Creamery" above the Keystone with the college seal inside and "State College, Pa." at the bottom of the Keystone became the standard label on all Creamery milk bottles.

On the opposite side (panel) was the slogan "Use College Ice Cream For All Occasions." A picture of Old Main with the pre-1929 tower appears in the center of the above phrase, and Old Main appeared on Penn State milk bottles for the rest of their existence. However, this was the only bottle that ever carried the pre-1929 "old" Old Main bell tower. These bottles (quart, pint, and half-pint) in the author's collection are the only ones known to exist and the only Creamery milk bottles that ever carried advertising.

The second pyro design showed Old Main on the panel with the "new" bell tower after Old Main was rebuilt and reopened in October 1930. These bottles were "tall rounds" in shape and used from 1938 to 1941.

The third pyro design featured war slogans during World War II. The bottle shape had also changed from "tall round" to "squat round," which resembled a bowling pin. These bottles, used from 1943 to 1945 said, "Buy War Bonds and Stamps" and "Drink Milk For Health." The earliest War Bond bottles were not dated before 1942.

Following the end of World War II, the squat round bottles continued in use through the late 1940s. The by-now standard label and the "new" Old Main continued on the panel.

Square bottles replaced rounds in the U.S. dairy industry in the late 1940s and early 1950s. The change resulted largely from consumers' complaints that the round bottle took too much space in the refrigerator. The change was quick, so much so that few round bottles remained in use by the late 1950s.

The first square Creamery milk bottles appeared around 1949. The only label was "Store State College Creamery" on both the front and back shoulder area. These were used until at least 1954. They were the only Penn State pyro bottles that did not exhibit the image of Old Main.

An unsolved mystery surrounds the square Creamery bottles used in the early 1950s. Some have the college seal inside the Keystone, while on others the college seal is missing from an empty Keystone.

It is not known when or why the college seal and Keystone parted company. One source suggests state government in Harrisburg initiated the disappearance of the Keystone, reasoning, so this theory goes, that the Keystone was the property of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, not that of the Pennsylvania State College Creamery. Whether this is the true reason or not, the Keystone disappeared from the milk bottles of the Creamery.

Many things changed on November 14, 1953. On that date, The Pennsylvania State College ceased to exist in name and became The Pennsylvania State University. Thus the State College Creamery needed to become the University Creamery. It was time to change the milk bottle label again.

The label wasn't the only thing that changed. A two-quart (half-gallon) size was added, and, for the first time, collectors looking for a complete set of University Creamery milk bottles needed four (two-quart, quart, pint and half-pint) instead of the traditional three.

Penn State Creamery Milk Bottles

Retail delivery route sales of milk were discontinued in 1958. Glass bottles on hand continued to be used for milk sold in the Creamery salesroom until about 1960 as glass was gradually replaced by waxed cardboard containers. Therefore, Penn State University Creamery milk bottles, in use for less than seven years, are harder to find than some of the Penn State College Creamery bottles that date back to the early 1900s.

There's good news, however, regarding Penn State Milk bottles. With the arrival of the new millennium in year 2000, the Penn Dairymen's Club (an alumni group in the Department of Dairy and Animal Sciences) launched a new Penn State milk bottle tradition by selling half-pint milk bottles as a fund-raising project.

The 2000 edition has a generic barn scene in blue and green. All subsequent editions have continued with the blue and green color. The second edition in 2001 carries a drawing of the Penn State Agricultural Arena. For the 2002 third edition, none other than the University Creamery is depicted. The "old" Penn State Dairy Barns adorn the fourth edition issues in 2003.

What will appear on these bottles in 2004? It's an especially significant year — the 100th anniversary of Patterson Building where the first Penn State glass milk bottle began a century of history; the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Penn State Dairymen's Club; and the fifth anniversary of the Dairymen's Club milk bottle.

Whatever image is chosen for the fifth edition in 2004, there will be no lack of worthy ideas coming from a century of rich history involving Penn State and the formerly plain old common glass milk bottle.

This article describes Penn State College Creamery milk bottles with five different embossed logos used circa 1904-1943. There are six different pyroglazed designs for College Creamery bottles used from 1937 until 1953. One pyroglazed design was used for University Creamery bottles during the years 1954-1960.

More than five years of searching have gone into the personal collection discussed. Years indicated are taken from bottles in this collection. It is believed that all designs have been found, but other logos and years may exist. Anyone with information, contact Darwin G. Braund, volunteer curator Pasto Agricultural Museum, Penn State University, 238 Agricultural Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802. Phone: (814) 863-1383, e-mail: dgbl2 psu.edu.

Antique Detective Questions And Answers

I have a print called "The Flowering Lady" by Renoir. On the lower right it says, "Wash. D.C. Minted. 1912. I know Renoir was a famous painter. It is in an older frame. Is it valuable ?

R.L. - Branchburg, NJ

Flowering Lady by Renoir.

Many such prints have been made over the years. The frame may be worth more than the print which could sell at a garage sale for $10.

I have a collection of bubble base bud vases in various sizes, shapes and colors.

They look like 40s or 50s style. Can you tell me anything about them?

M.S. - Walterboro, SC.

You are right that your bud vases were made from the 1950s, on and by many glass companies, including Steuben. Value depends on the maker.

Check for names on the bottom, then do some research in one of the many Price guides.

Teplitz-style vase.

This glass urn, with a hand-painted portrait of a lady is unmarked. I thought it might be Bristol glass. it is 20" tall including the cover. What can you tell me? There is printing around her portrait.

E.M. - Evanston, IL

It would be helpful if you had told me what the printing says; what language, etc. However, from your photo you have a mid-19th century, Bohemian glass bottle, possibly for cologne. Similar pieces have sold at auction from $350 up.

Enclosed is a vase belonging to my grandmother. It is hand painted, not signed.

Can you comment on the value?

L.B. - Lower Burrell

Your vase is Teplitz-style. Teplitz was an art pottery in Bohemia at the end of the 19th century, specializing in Art Nouveau and Art Deco styles. All their pieces were hand-painted and usually signed. However, if yours can be attributed to the pottery it could have a value of $500 or more.

I have had this maple armchair for at least 40 years, bought at the garage sale of an elderly couple that had bought it 50 years ago at an antique shop. Anything you can tell me about age, origin and value appreciated.

L.T. - Lincolnwood, IL

Ladder back chairs were made beginning in 1725. Your country-style ladder back armchair was probably made around 1800-1835.

The curved arms are puzzling, and could have been added later, since they are more skillfully done. Similar dated chairs can sell at auction for from $300/600.

Dairymaster Hosts Trip

CINCINNATI, Ohio — Dairymaster USA Inc. recently hosted a trip to the factory in Ireland for current Dairymaster milking system users together with potential customers.

They were all treated to a factory tour, a visit to the Irish research institute at Moore Park, and visits to both side-by-side milking parlors and a Dairymaster 60-point rotary milking facility.

Roy and Barbara Beardsley, Troy, have a side-by-side, 22-unit new parlor with full auto ID, milk meters, three-way sort gate, and Dairymaster milk manager program.

Tom and Anne Preischel from Eden, N.Y. have the same equipment in a new 30-unit parlor with an automated backing gate.

Steve and Laura Paxton have ordered a 32-unit parlor with all the automation as above.

Mike and Cindy Weimer, Knox, have ordered a nonrecording, 14-unit parlor.

Chris and Tammy McHenry have an existing double-8 parlor that has been retrofitted with Dairymaster pulsation controllers and clusters. They are planning a new 16-unit facility.

Dirk Meulenberg from Maryland is planning a 14-point parlor to change up from his current tiestall operation.

Gehl's power in-feed system opens to nearly 7" for large crop volume

Featuring the ALL-NEW Variable Open-Throat Power In-Feed System

GREAT BALING STARTS HERE

Variable Open-Throat Power In-Feed System

Here's how it works. The incoming crop is pulled off the pickup by the aggressive action of two power in-feed rolls – a 6-inch-diameter pivoting power in-feed roll on top and and 8-inch diameter fixed power in-feed roll on the bottom.

The top pivoting power in-feed roll rides over the crop as it is pulled into the bale chamber. An extension spring keeps the toproll under constant downward force.

The spring tension increases as the variable throat opens from a minimum of 3/4 of an inch up to a maximum opening of nearly 7 inches. The constant downward force of the pivoting upper powered in-feed roll, in combination with the fixed lower in-feed roll, both turning inward, pinches the crop and forces it into the bale chamber. The stripping roll strips crop off the belt and forces it down to the incoming crop. Adjustable scrapers on the stripping roll and pivoting roll eliminate buildup One Only

The Most Powerful Blower Made In Stock At Binkley & Hurst Bros., Inc. - 1000 RPM Model 1580 Gehl - Get One Today!

Choose The Gehl Blower That's Right For You

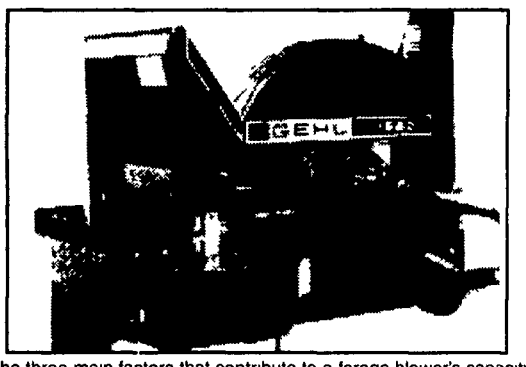
With three models it's easy to match a high-capacity Gehl blower to your operation. In side by side tests at a 100' silo, Gehl blowers out-performed the best the competition had to offer, with the Model 1580 cleaning out an 18' self-unloading box full of haylage 18% faster than the closest competitive blower and 25% faster than one of the so called "leaders."

Gehl's secret is the twin spinner delivery system and the twin-sided fan. Two 24-inch spinners rifle your crop into the blower fan at nearly 35 mph. There, the twin-sided fan, with paddles on each side, blows the material up the pipe with ease. It's almost like getting the performance of two blowers in one.

Gehl blowers are also loaded with on convenience features you're sure to appreciate.

As a guideline, we recommend the following

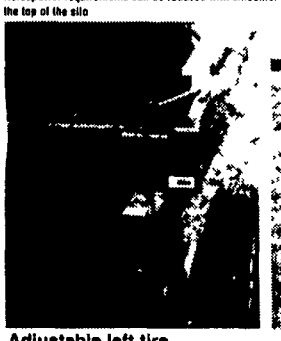
Silo size	HP required	Gehl Model
20'Wx60'-70' high	70 hp	FB1540
25'Wx90' and higher	100+ hp	FB1580 (1000 rpm) in stock



The three main factors that contribute to a forage blower's capacity are tip speed, hopper capabilities and available horsepower. Generally speaking, for optimum capacity the blower requires at least one horsepower for each foot the material must be blown.

For instance, a blower on a 20-foot-diameter by 60-foot-center silo would require 70-plus horsepower. On a 25-foot-diameter by 90-foot center fill silo you should have 100-plus horsepower.

Horsepower requirements can be reduced with smoother unloading forage boxes and a wider goosenck at the top of the silo



Adjustable left tire. Setting up at the silo is faster and easier. The adjustable left axle lets you line up the blower without loosening and adjusting the rim sheet. Simply adjust the tire up or down until you get the matching angle to your pipe.

Swing away blower outlet. They're more than tremendous blowing capacity designed into these blowers. Gehl swing away outlet makes it easier than ever to check fan paddle and rim sheet clearances and for rim sheet liner replacement. (Note this outlet should never be opened until the pto is disconnected from the tractor and the blower disc has stopped turning.

Greater rim sheet life. These blowers feature split rim sheets with a special inner, replaceable liner. This extra hard liner is twice the thickness of ordinary rim sheet steel. In addition, when it finally does wear out, you only replace the liner that fits in the extreme wear area of the blower, right below the outlet. You don't have to replace the entire rim sheet! The result: reduced costs over the life of your Gehl blower.

Believe It Or Not, Gehl Blowers Have Less Moving Parts Than Most Competitive Models.

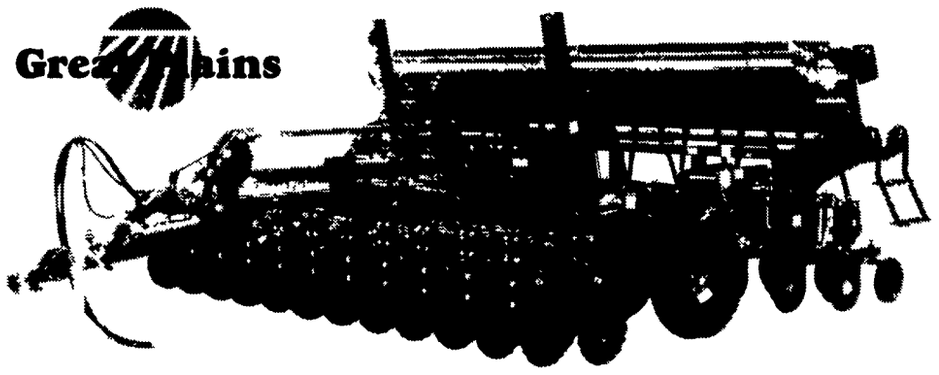
BETTER SEED PLACEMENT THAT'S PRECISELY THE POINT

Great Plains



- Great Plains Precision Seeding System Plants Corn, Soybeans and Small Grains
- Gives you the ability to singulate seed in the furrow while dramatically increasing seedbox capacity over traditional hopper-style planters
- The SingulatorPlus Meter™ sits directly on top of the double disc opener, and once the meter releases the seed, it has less distance to travel thus ensuring more accurate seed placement.

15' and 20' Widths Now In Stock!

Before you buy your next planter or drill, consider the following facts:

- ➤ If you overpopulate with either a planter or a drill, you increase your seed cost and decrease yields.
- ➤ Only Great Plains meets or exceeds planters on depth control and seed-to-soil contact for even emergence and maximum yield.
- ➤ Drilled beans canopy up to 3 weeks earlier than planted beans, dramatically reducing chemical cost.
- ➤ The earlier canopy of drilled beans saves precious moisture that can make or break a bean crop.

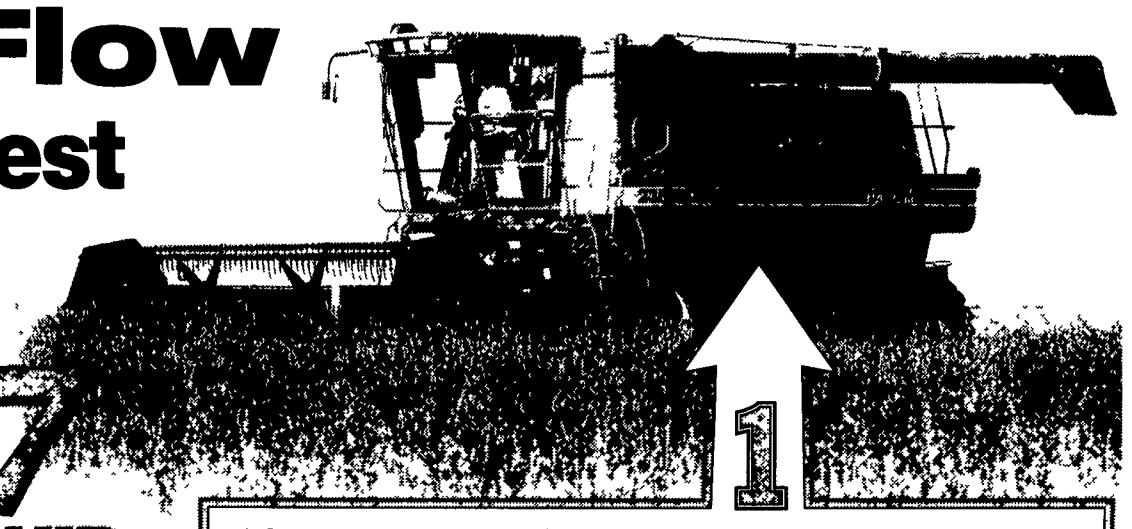
ial-Flow Simplest to Go



A Case-IH Rotary Axial-Flow Combine has only ONE moving part in it's entire threshing/separating process . . . a single large-diameter rotor. Open up the side shield on any other rotary combine and compare it to the drive mechanism, and you will see that the Case-IH rotary combine has fewer moving parts, which means fewer problems and easier adjustments. Plus all Hoober combines are backed by our experienced combine service technicians.

Rotary Rakes : Best for Merging
- PTO Drive handles Heavy wet Windrows
- No Stones in the windrow
- No wads & No roping=No slugging chopper
- Rakes corners & headlands other rakes can't

Rotary Rakes : Best for Drying
Most types of rakes roll the hay across the ground twisting it into a tight windrow that can't dry. Rotary rakes lift and carry hay forkful by forkful' to form a light fluffy windrow which has maximum wind penetration
The result: Hay raked with a Kuhn rotary rake 8 hours after mowing generally has about a day less drying time compared to unraked hay. And with less leaf loss than if raked when dry

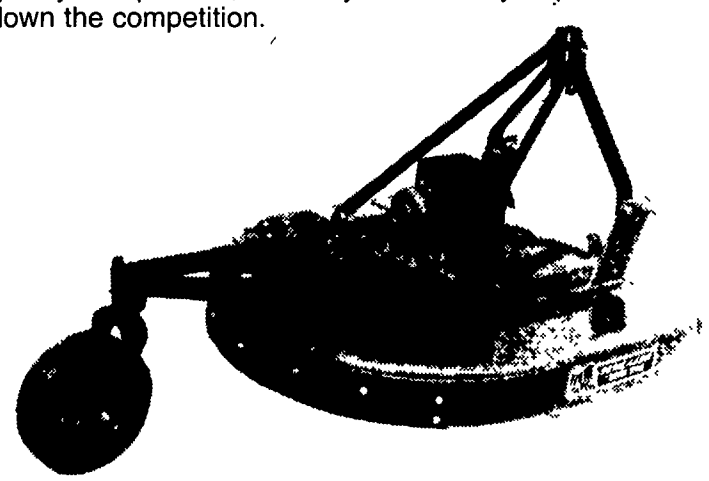
WHY BUSH HOG SQUEALERS MOW DOWN THE COMPETITION.

There are two basic reasons and quality is the first. Each Squealer model is equipped with a tough Bush Hog gearbox that carries a 2-year limited warranty. All models except the 42-inch wide cutter feature oval blade pans as standard equipment, and the 5 and 6-foot wide models have an "in line" shear bolt driveline protection that can be replaced in a snap. An optional slip clutch is available. A new formed deck design increases strength and eye appeal.

The second reason for the Squealer's popularity is price. Select any of the six models, 42 to 84-inches wide, and compare prices with the competition. With a true price and quality comparison, it's easy to see why Squealers mow down the competition.



BUSH HOG®, L.L.C.

Building the Legend.

Imported from Holland, ORLANDO is a black 17.1 Hand Dutch Harness Horse Stallion.

The Dutch Harness Horse is a wonderful horse to cross with existing breeds of horses used for driving and work. Dutch Harness Horses have been bred in Holland for over 80 years. The sole purpose is to increase trot and stride, thus producing driving horses that move more efficiently and cover more ground with less effort.

Exciting opportunities exist for the serious breeder looking to be involved with the induction and infusion of these great horses into today's breeding programs.

ORLANDO is standing at Mogadore, Ohio for the 2003 breeding season, shipped semen is available. The 2003 introductory stud fee is $1000.00 and includes a live foal guarantee.
